Detainee Bill Spurs GOP Rift

Senate panel bucks Bush on legal rights of terror suspects

WASHINGTON | A rebellious Senate committee defied President Bush on Thursday and approved terror-detainee legislation he has vowed to block, deepening Republican conflict over terrorism and national security in the middle of election season.

Republican Sen. John Warner of Virginia, normally a Bush supporter, pushed the measure through his Armed Services Committee by a 15-9 vote, with Warner and three other GOP lawmakers joining Democrats. The vote set the stage for a showdown on the Senate floor as early as next week.

Earlier in the day, Bush had journeyed to the Capitol to try nailing down support for his own version of the legislation, which would go further than the Senate package in allowing classified evidence to be withheld from defendants in terror trials, using coerced testimony and protecting U.S. interrogators against prosecution for using methods that violate the Geneva Conventions.

The mushrooming battle threatens to undermine campaign season assertions by the administration that it has shown a steady hand on security and that Republicans should be trusted over Democrats on such issues. (AP)

QUIET | Liquor, Then Lick Montrose, England, police hope to stop drunks' late-night public singing, swearing and shouting — by giving them lollipops as they leave bars, the Daily Record reported. After frequent complaints by residents about noise, police officials reasoned revelers would be quieter if they had things in their mouths. Hence, free lollipops. "There is some skepticism whether this is going to work," city councillor Terry Wood said. (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

Why Are All the Calls Going Against Us?

An Essex, England, soccer team's uniform has been banned by the league because it says, "the referee's a w*nker," with a red card over where the "a" would be, the Sun reported. Stambridge United wanted to don the uniform as part of a sponsorship deal with a publishing company to promote a book with that title. After a few games, however, the league ruled that the phrase was offensive; one player of the team was already kicked out of the game for wearing it. "It's absolutely absurd," said Chris Porter, the author of the book. "It caused a laugh. You can hear the chant at every football match in the country." (EXPRESS)

Second Place Is a Box of Grenades!

A Weaverville, N.C., youth athletic association stopped the sale of raffle tickets for an Uzi submachine gun after parents complained that the tickets were being sold at a concession stand. Gary Chandler, commissioner of the North Buncombe Youth Athletic Association, said his group didn't approve the raffle tickets, which were sold Saturday during football practice at a park. Parents who saw the fliers complained to the association. "It was a parent who was doing soliciting out in the community," Chandler said. "This individual or parent did not think it through." With a few exceptions, it is illegal to possess a machine gun. (AP)

The newest fad for Parisians this year is classic Americana, but, oddly, we don't remember how Mickey Mouse's being devoured by a demonic head of matches is a part of culture. Still, the Grand Palais museum is banking that "Mickey Matchhead," a 1994 sculpture by David Mach on display Wednesday, will help show how Disney's animators took inspiration from European art, from Bavarian castles to the German Expressionist filmmakers. Hmm, we'll skip it and head to Euro Disney. (EXPRESS)

Fear of Breaking Leg Still Intact, Though

A Lantana, Fla., father broke his leg Monday trying to cure his daughter's fear of heights. Troy Stewart and his 10-year-old daughter Meagan were on their daily bike ride when Stewart suggested they jump off a 15-foot bridge as a way of curing the girl's fear of heights. Meagan made the jump into the Intracoastal Waterway safely, but her father ended up with a broken leg. (AP)

House Approves Plan for Fence Along Mexico Border

The House voted for the second time in a year to erect a fence along a third of the U.S.-Mexican border, part of a Republican effort to keep illegal immigration an issue before voters. A new 700 miles of double-layered fencing won approval on a 283-138 vote, a bigger margin than last December when the House passed it as part of a broader bill that also would have made being an illegal immigrant a felony. Powell Opposes Interrogation Plans

Ex-secretary of state issues a harsh criticism of White House policy

WASHINGTON | Former Secretary of State Colin Powell, parting company with President Bush, came out against harsh interrogations of terror suspects even as the president lobbied personally for it on Capitol Hill Thursday.

"I will resist any bill that does not enable this program to go forward with legal clarity," Bush told reporters back at the White House after his meeting with lawmakers.

White House spokesman Tony Snow, when asked whether Powell was confused about the White House's goals, said "Yes." Later, Snow said he probably shouldn't have used the word "confused."

"I know that Colin Powell wants to beat the terrorists, too," he said.

The latest sign of GOP division over White House security policy came Thursday in a letter that Powell sent to Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., one of three rebellious senators taking on the White House. Powell said Congress must not pass Bush's proposal to redefine U.S. compliance with the Geneva Conventions, a treaty that sets international standards for the treatment of prisoners of war.

The campaign-season development accompanied Bush's visit to Capitol Hill, where he conferred behind closed doors with House Republicans.

Powell

His plan would narrow the U.S. legal interpretation of the Geneva Conventions treaty in a bid to allow tougher interrogations and shield U.S. personnel from being prosecuted for war crimes.

"The world is beginning to doubt the moral basis of our fight against terrorism," said Powell, who served under Bush and is a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. "To redefine Common Article 3 would add to those doubts. Furthermore, it would put our own troops at risk."

Republican dissatisfaction with the administration's security proposals is becoming more prominent as the midterm election season has arrived. The Bush White House wants Congress to approve greater executive power to spy on, imprison and interrogate terrorism suspects.

House Changes Ethics Rule Over Earmarking

Measure requires that lawmakers name special projects put into bills

WASHINGTON | The House changed its rules Thursday to require lawmakers to identify the special projects they slip into legislation, a modest step toward restoring the reputation of Congress in a year of ethical lapses and scandals involving relations with lobbyists.

The change, in effect only through year's end, is aimed at curtailing a practice whereby lawmakers anonymously insert "earmarks" — narrowly tailored spending that often helps a company or project in their district — into bills.

Democrats disparaged the measure, citing the failure of the Republican-led Congress to pass more comprehensive legislation to clean up lawmaker relations with lobbyists.

GOP Rep. Jeff Flake of Arizona, a leading critic of special interest spending, said: "I'm under no illusion that this legislation, which deals only with the issue of transparency, will solve the problem of earmarking. But this bill does represent an important first step." (AP)

NASA Opens Solar Panels

Wings to create space station's power after construction is done

HOUSTON | NASA unfurled the international space station's new solar wings for the first time Thursday in what looked like a giant accordion being stretched out in orbit.

"Big day for space station. Congratulations," Mission Control radioed space shuttle Atlantis as the electricity generating panels glinted like gold bars in the sunlight.

The unfurling of the 240-foot wings was delayed about three hours because of a software glitch involving the hardware's Ferris wheel-like rotating joint. That mechanism allows the solar panels to move with the sun to maximize the amount of electricity generated.

The crew did not run into any trouble with the folded-up panels sticking together in the cold, a problem that came up during a mission in 2000.

The solar wings — part of a new, $372 million addition that arrived aboard Atlantis earlier this week — will provide about a quarter of the space station's power when the orbiting outpost is completed in 2010. RASHA MADCOUR (AP)

Lawyer: FCC Study on Media Ordered Axed

Destroyed report said industry consolidation hurts local coverage

WASHINGTON | The Federal Communications Commission ordered its staff to destroy all copies of a draft study that suggested greater concentration of media ownership would hurt local TV news coverage, a former lawyer at the agency says.

The report, written in 2004, came to light during the Senate confirmation hearing for FCC Chairman Kevin Martin. Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif. received a copy of the report "indirectly from someone within the FCC who believed the information should be made public," according to Boxer spokeswoman Natalie Ravitz.

Adam Candeub, now a law professor at Michigan State University, said senior managers at the agency ordered that "every last piece" of the report be destroyed. "The whole project was just stopped — end of discussion," he said. Candeub was a lawyer in the FCC's Media Bureau.

Boxer said she was "dismayed that this report, which was done at taxpayer expense more than two years ago, and which concluded that localism is beneficial to the public, was shoved in a drawer." (AP)

Court Backs Man Who Sold Water From Donations

BARTOW, FLA. | A convenience store owner convicted of selling donated water intended for hurricane victims committed no crime and should be released from probation, an appeals court ruled.

Last year, a judge found Salah Darwish guilty of cheating by false pretenses for selling bottled water that had been distributed free at a Hurricane Charley relief center in 2004.

But the 2nd District Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday that the charge was unproven because Darwish didn't clearly lie to officials at the center about what he was going to do with the water. (AP)

Former Texas Gov. Ann Richards Dies

Sharp-witted political groundbreaker aimed to open government

AUSTIN, TEXAS | Two years before she was elected governor of Texas, Ann Richards electrified the 1988 Democratic National Convention with a keynote speech in which she joked that the Republican presidential nominee, George H.W. Bush, had been "born with a silver foot in his mouth."

A longtime champion of women and minorities in government who was serving at the time as Texas state treasurer, she won cheers when she reminded delegates that Ginger Rogers did everything Fred Astaire did, "only backwards and in high heels."

Richards died Wednesday at 73 after a battle with esophageal cancer. Her single term as governor had ended in a 1994 defeat to George W. Bush, who went from besting his father's silver-haired critic to the governor's office to the presidency.

"Texas has lost one of its great daughters," President Bush said after learning of Richards' death.

A homemaker before she entered politics, Richards cracked a half-century male grip on the governor's mansion and celebrated by holding up a T-shirt that showed the state Capitol and read: "A woman's place is in the dome."

Richards

She told an interviewer shortly before leaving office, "I did not want my tombstone to read, 'She kept a really clean house.' I think I'd like them to remember me by saying, 'She opened government to everyone.'"

Whether or not she succeeded at that, there was no question she cracked open the door.

As governor, Richards appointed the first black University of Texas regent, the first crime victim on the state Criminal Justice Board, the first disabled person on the human services board and the first teacher to lead the State Board of Education.

PM Warns Military Will Seize Weapons of Militants

Lebanese prime minister Fuad Saniora warned Thursday that his army will seize all weapons shown publicly in southern Lebanon, offering a sharp retort to a boast from Hezbollah's leader that his fighters are on the border with Israel and won't leave. A month into the U.N. cease-fire between Israel and Hezbollah, the United Nations said the truce is holding well, but the comments underscored growing friction between the Islamic militant group and the Lebanese government. Pakistani rights and opposition groups expressed outrage Thursday after the government delayed a bill to reform an Islamic-based law that currently makes prosecuting rape cases almost impossible. Women trying to press charges have sometimes faced charges of adultery. (AP)

Shooter's Rage Captured on Blogs

Montreal gunman killed himself during rampage, police report

MONTREAL | A 25-year-old man who mounted a deadly shooting rampage at a Montreal college had posted pictures of himself on the Internet with a rifle and said he was feeling "crazy" and "postal" and was drinking whiskey hours before the attack.

He also said on a blog that he liked to play a role-playing Internet game about the Columbine High School shootings and wanted to die "in a hail of gunfire."

In the end, the attacker — dressed in a black trench coat like the Columbine shooters — put his own gun to his head and pulled the trigger during a shootout with officers at Dawson College on Wednesday, police said.

By that time, he had already wounded 20 other people — one of whom, an 18-year-old woman, later died. Four shooting victims remained in critical condition Thursday, including three in extremely critical condition and one in a deep coma.

The gunman, who arrived at the downtown college armed with a rapid-fire rifle and two other weapons, was identified as Kimveer Gill of Laval, near Montreal, said Jayson Gauthier of Quebec provincial police.

CP/VAMPIREFREAKS.COM/AP

DEADLY END: Photos reportedly showing Kimveer Gill, 25, who has been identified as the Montreal gunman, were posted on a Web site called VampireFreaks.com.

The Internet postings and a neighbor's description reveal an angry, solitary young man who lived with his mother, sported a mohawk, dressed in black and was filled with hatred for everyone from jocks to preppies and everything from country music to hip-hop.

"Work sucks ... school sucks ... life sucks ... what else can I say? ... Life is a video game you've got to die sometime," he wrote in his profile for a Web site called VampireFreaks.com.

Authorities searched Gill's home Wednesday evening and seized his computer and other belongings.

Western Afghan Front Feared for Taliban Fighters

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | As NATO troops exert pressure on Taliban forces in southern Afghanistan, militants have regrouped in western provinces and ignited violence that has killed a dozen people in two days, officials said Thursday.

Afghanistan and NATO fear that Farah province, which borders Iran, could become a Taliban sanctuary if military power isn't used to crush the threat quickly. Farah is an area where people have ethnic links to the Taliban militia. (AP)

New Rabbis Mark German Milestone

Jewish community grows with first rabbis ordained since WWII

DRESDEN, GERMANY | Germany's Jewish community has risen from the ashes of the Holocaust to become the fastest-growing in the world, but for decades has relied on imported rabbis to lead its burgeoning and diverse congregation.

That changed Thursday with the ordination of the first rabbis since World War II in a ceremony celebrated as a milestone in the rebirth of Jewish life in Germany.

AP

New rabbi Malcolm Mattitiani, center, takes part in the ordination ceremony.

At the festive celebration in Dresden's rebuilt synagogue, Daniel Alter, Tomas Kucera and Malcolm Mattitiani were warmly received as spiritual leaders of a new generation of German Jews.

"We take great joy and pride at this occasion," said Rabbi Uri Regev, president of the World Union for Progressive Judaism.

Thursday's ordination comes as reunified Germany has made strides to replenish its Jewish community, which has grown even in the still-bitter aftermath of the Nazi genocide that killed some 6 million Jews.

By the end of the war in 1945, just 10,000-15,000 Jews remained in Germany. It took 45 years for the number to double to 30,000 when East and West Germany reunited in 1990. STEFANIE VON BROCHOWSKI (AP)

Chief judge Abdullah al-Amiri, left, told ex-Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein "You are not a dictator. You were not a dictator" during Thursday's court session in Baghdad.

Judge: Saddam Was Not 'Dictator'

Apparent defense of ex-Iraqi leader sparks calls for judge to quit

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | The chief judge in Saddam Hussein's genocide trial told the ex-president Thursday that "you were not a dictator," sparking Kurdish demands he be replaced. The judge already had rejected prosecution demands he step down for allegedly favoring the defense.

Judge Abdullah al-Amiri, a Shiite Arab, made the comment after Saddam challenged testimony by a Kurdish farmer who said the ousted president ordered him to "shut up" when he begged for the release of nine missing relatives.

"Why did he try to see Saddam Hussein [if] Saddam Hussein was a dictator and was against the Kurdish people?" the former president asked.

The judge replied: "You are not a dictator. You were not a dictator. However, the people or the individuals and officials surrounding you created a dictator [out of you]. It was not you in particular. It happens all over the world."

"Thank you," Saddam responded, bowing his head in respect.

Saddam and six co-defendants are being tried on charges of committing atrocities against Kurds during the Operation Anfal crackdown in northern Iraq nearly two decades ago. The prosecution alleges some 180,000 people died in the campaign.

Two hours after the comment about Saddam, al-Amiri abruptly recessed the session until Monday for "technical reasons."

Al-Amiri's comments are likely to stoke anger among Kurds who had already complained he was too lenient with Saddam. (AP)

2 U.S. Soldiers Among 18 Killed in Iraq

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Car bombs and drive-by shootings on Thursday killed at least 18 people — including two U.S. soldiers — in a series of attacks around central Iraq, officials said. The tortured bodies of 20 men were also discovered across Baghdad.

One of the U.S. soldiers died from wounds after his unit came under attack in Baghdad, while the second was killed after his vehicle was struck by a roadside bomb south of the capital, the U.S. military said.

Also Thursday, the U.S. military said its forces have arrested a senior al-Qaeda figure and personal associate of the group's new leader. The man, who was not identified, was arrested Tuesday. (AP)

Top Russian Banker Shot to Death

Andrei Kozlov had led efforts to clean-up criminality in banks

MOSCOW | Andrei Kozlov, a top central banker crusading against money-laundering, had just finished playing soccer when two assailants pumped him full of bullets.

Officials suspect the slaying was ordered by crooked financiers unhappy with Kozlov's drive to clean up the system — underscoring how Vladimir Putin's Russia remains a cauldron of murky business interests rife with gangland killings.

Kozlov

The assassins fled in the darkness, leaving their guns behind — the signature of a contract killing.

Kozlov died in a hospital early Thursday, officials said.

Kozlov, 41, was a career central bank official widely respected for his efforts to establish order in the chaotic banking sector. He had withdrawn the licenses of dozens of banks and had overseen an ambitious scheme to reduce criminality and money laundering in the banking system. (AP)

Fox Shifts Locale Of Yearly Salute

Mexican leader decides to avoid confrontation with leftist protesters

MEXICO CITY | President Vicente Fox backed away from a confrontation with leftist Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador on Thursday, announcing that he wouldn't hold his annual Independence Day celebration at the capital's main Zocalo square to avoid protesters.

Lopez Obrador and his supporters had vowed to upstage Fox by refusing to take part in Friday's salute of "Viva Mexico!", delivered each year by the president. They plan to take over the Zocalo for their own celebration, and some feared clashes if pro-government revelers showed up.

Fox will move his ceremony to the small, central town of Dolores Hidalgo, 170 miles northwest of Mexico City, where Roman Catholic priest Miguel Hidalgo launched the first call for independence from Spain in 1810.

Other presidents have celebrated Independence Day in the town, which is in Fox's home state of Guanajuato.

The announcement resolved the latest standoff between Fox and Lopez Obrador. On Sept. 1, lawmakers from Lopez Obrador's party seized Congress, blocking Fox from giving his last state-of-the-nation address.

Lopez Obrador's supporters have been camped out in the Zocalo for weeks. They have refused to recognize President-elect Felipe Calderon's slim victory over Lopez Obrador, and say they will do everything they can to keep the National Action candidate from taking office Dec. 1 and governing.

Utah Joining D.C.'s Fight for a Vote

State says it needs an extra seat and District should get one, as well

WASHINGTON | The District is making another pitch for voting representation on Capitol Hill, but this time it's getting help from the Republican state of Utah, which is looking for more congressional representation.

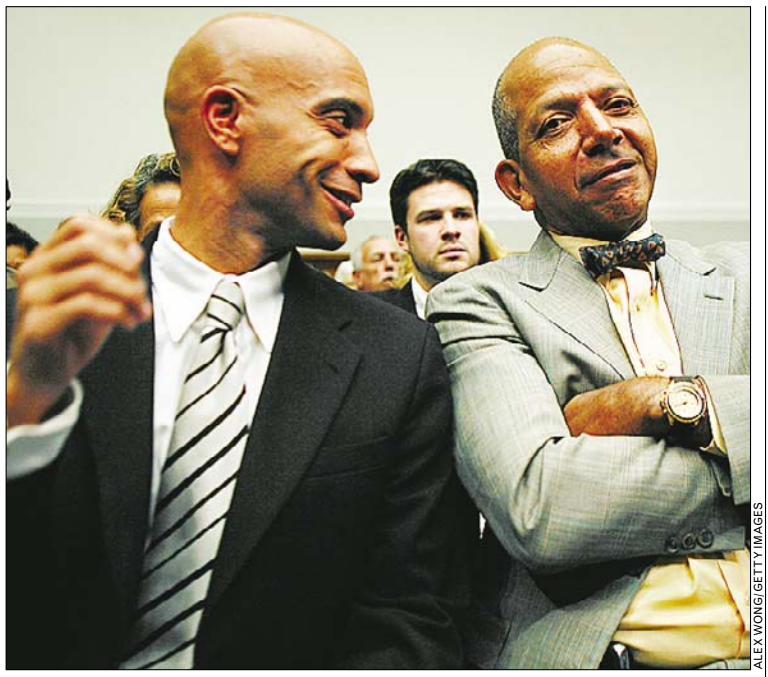

Gov. John M. Huntsman testified Thursday before a House Judiciary subcommittee to build support for legislation that would add two members to the House, one from Utah and another from the District. Utah has argued that its residents were undercounted in the last census, depriving it of a new seat.

While the district has an elected House delegate who can vote in committee, its it has never had its own representative.

"I can't imagine what it is like for Americans to have no representation for over 200 years," said Huntsman.

A bill approved by the House Government Reform Committee would boost House membership by two, to 437. Until the results of the 2010 census are certified, Utah would gain one at-large member, giving it a total of four. The D.C. delegate would become a permanent voting House member.

"It's simply wrong for the District to have no directly elected representation," said Rep. Tom Davis, R-Va., who worked with Del. Eleanor Holmes Norton, D-D.C., to come up with legislation. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

County to Review Election

Montgomery to hire a consulting firm to see what caused problems

ROCKVILLE, MD. | The Montgomery County Board of Elections said Thursday it will ask for an independent review of its election management after human errors on primary day caused massive countywide voting problems.

The board said it plans to ask The Election Center, a Houston-based consulting firm, to conduct the inquiry "in order to ensure that best practice are being utilized in preparing for the General Election." That election is scheduled for Nov. 7.

The board also rejected calls for the removal of Montgomery Elections Director Margaret Jurgensen. County Executive Douglas Duncan and County Council President George Leventhal said Wednesday that Jurgensen should be fired for Tuesday's problems. (AP)

Segway Scooters Recalled

Wheels can reverse unexpectedly, leading to injury risk for riders

NEW YORK | Segway Inc. is recalling all 23,500 of the self-balancing scooters it has shipped because of a software glitch that can make its wheels unexpectedly reverse direction, throwing off the rider — and in at least one incident, breaking some teeth.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission on Thursday said consumers should stop using the vehicles immediately.

Segway has received six reports of problems with the Personal Transporter, resulting in head and wrist injuries.

Segway is offering its customers, which include more than 150 police departments around the world, a free software upgrade that will fix the problem. The upgrades will be done at Segway's 100 dealerships and service centers around the world, according to Segway spokeswoman Carla Vallone. The Bedford, N.H., company will pay to ship the devices to the appropriate center if need be.

KAREN BLEIER/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

Segway is offering a free software upgrade for the 23,500 scooters in use.

It is the second time the scooters, which sell for about $4,000 to $5,500, have been recalled since they first went on sale in 2002. The 2003 recall involved the first 6,000 of the devices sold, and involved a problem that could cause riders to fall off the device when the battery was depleted.

Field and Segway Chief Executive Jim Norrod would not comment on whether the problem has sparked any lawsuits, and would not give any details about the severity of the injuries sustained.

According to CPSC spokesman Scott Wolfson, the injuries included broken teeth, a broken wrist and facial injuries, including one that needed surgical repair. (AP)

Ford to Offer 75,000 Job Buyouts

DETROIT | Ford Motor Co. plans to offer buyout and early retirement packages to more than 75,000 of its employees, a United Auto Workers union official said Thursday.

The union told its members about the plan after discussions with Ford about the proposal, said Chris Kimmons, president of UAW Local 919 at the Norfolk, Va., assembly plant.

The buybacks are aimed at helping Ford cut costs as its sales shrink under fierce competition from more fuel-efficient models from Asian automakers.

The nation's second biggest automaker said that it would announce details of the new plan on Friday.

Kimmons said the packages offer $35,000 to $140,000 to workers who leave the company, depending on their number of years of service and retirement eligibility.

Ford lost $1.4 billion during the first half of the year and is under pressure from Wall Street to make further cuts and roll out new cars and trucks more quickly. (AP)

'Chinatown buses' drop traveling prices — but at what cost?

How safe are the 30 or so cheap, so-called "Chinatown buses" that pick up passengers waiting on the curb for runs between Washington, New York and Boston?

That question took on new urgency this month as a speeding Fung Wah bus overturned on a freeway ramp outside Boston on Sept. 5, injuring 34.

Of course, any bus company can have a bad day. But Fung Wah has had more than its share. Moreover, information that emerged about Fung Wah after the crash echoed long-standing concerns about curbside bus lines in general.

Public officials in the past year have joined established bus companies in questioning whether drivers are competent and speak enough English to read signs or help in an emergency, whether buses are adequately maintained and whether there is enough oversight to ensure that they comply with even basic state and federal laws.

Ian Grossman, spokesman for the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA), which oversees inter-state bus companies, said that "the safety records of curbside buses are no better and no worse than for buses that operate out of terminals," and that there have been no fatal crashes of curbside operators along the East Coast corridor.

KEVIN CLARK/TWP

Riders board a bus in Washington. The buses' level of safety is in question.

The buses, by offering dirt-cheap fares and curbside pick-ups in convenient locations, have become increasingly popular in recent years. Round-trip fares between Washington and New York are as low as $35; established companies like Greyhound and Peter Pan have responded by dropping many of their fares to $45.

Sen. Charles E. Schumer, a New York Democrat, has urged federal regulators to close what he calls a "safety gap on inter-city Chinatown buses." Among the curbside operators with service out of Washington: Dragon Coach, New Century Travel, Washington Deluxe, Eastern Travel and Todays Bus.

KEVIN CLARK/TWP

The Bus Stops Here

➜ How to check out the bus company you normally ride, and a review of safety violations | Travel

FMCSA used to post the safety evaluation scores that make up an overall rating at its Web site, but the data have been removed while officials work to improve their timeliness and accuracy. But Schumer's office collected data last year on Fung Wah and two other curbside companies — data that raise serious questions.

The data on driver safety show that Greyhound, in business since 1914, has a driver safety score of 22 out of 100 (the lower the number, the better). Fung Wah: 73. Dragon Coach: 74. New Century: 97.

They did better on vehicle safety inspections (Greyhound: 16. Dragon Coach: 27. Fung Wah: 9. New Century: 43.). But all three curbside operators received poor marks for "safety management." Greyhound: 0. Fung Wah: 71. Dragon Coach: 99. New Century: 92.

The emergence of dozens of curbside operators hasn't changed the fact that overall, bus travel is safer than taking to the highways by car.

But in an East Coast inspection sweep last year of 400 buses owned by all types of bus companies, officials found more than 500 safety violations, some so serious that 56 buses and 13 drivers were ordered off the road.

Schumer has urged that a better-funded FMCSA beef up enforcement, and that companies be required to post their last inspection ratings on each bus.

Until that happens, you can try looking up the safety stats on your own. If bus lines won't tell you their corporate name and no current information is available at FMCSA, maybe what you're seeing is a red flag.

Redskins must try to stop big plays — while creating some, as well

REDSKINS | Troy Williamson, Chester Taylor, Travis Taylor, Billy McMullen and Marcus Robinson all have two things in common.

All five Minnesota Vikings had catches of 20 yards or more against the Washington Redskins in the Redskins' 19-16 loss on Monday night. None of the five has played in the Pro Bowl.

Dallas' wide receivers Terrell Owens and Terry Glenn and tight end Jason Witten have.

That's not good news for the Redskins, who head into Dallas for a pivotal Week 2 matchup coming off a short week.

"Scheme-wise and player-wise [Dallas] is very explosive," Washington head coach Joe Gibbs said Tuesday. "They have very explosive players."

The Redskins' injury-depleted secondary has been revamped. And so the question remains: Will that group be able to make enough adjustments to stop a dangerous set of Cowboys wide receivers on Sunday night?

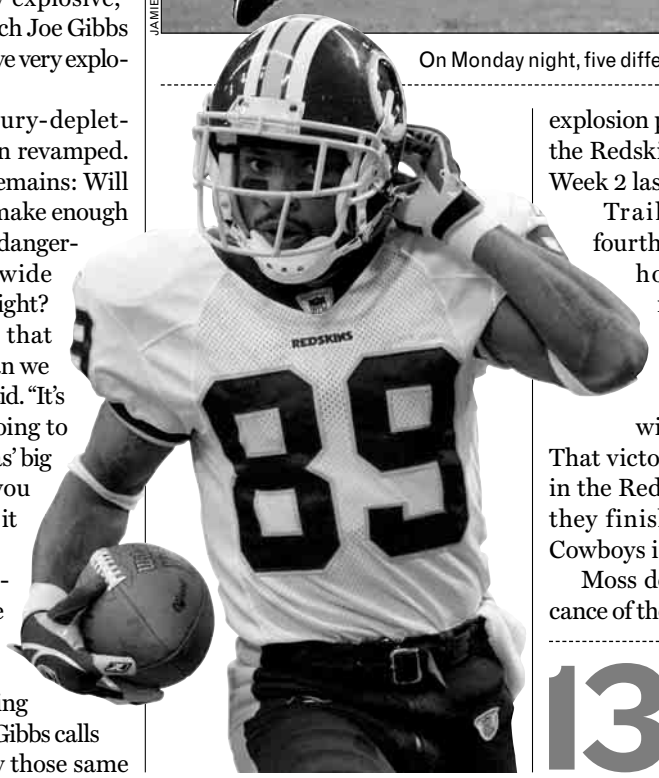

"The hope here is that we can play better than we did last week," Gibbs said. "It's unlikely that you're going to completely stop [Dallas' big plays] entirely, but you hope you can contain it the best you can."

There's an underlying irony in those concerns. While Washington is worrying about surrendering "explosion plays" — as Gibbs calls them — it was exactly those same explosion plays that jump-started the Redskins' offense at Dallas in Week 2 last season.

JAMIE SQUIRE/GETTY IMAGES

On Monday night, five different Minnesota wide receivers caught passes of 20 yards or more.

Trailing 13-0 late in the fourth quarter, Mark Brunell hooked up with wide receiver Santana Moss for scores of 39 and 70 yards to lead Washington to its first win in Dallas since 1995. That victory on the road was key in the Redskins' playoff berth, as they finished a game up on the Cowboys in the NFC East.

Moss down played the significance of those plays — pointing out that one play wasn't going to win a game. But Gibbs said it was a priority to get the ball downfield after struggles in that area in Week 1, and Brunell knows long drives aren't easy to come by in Texas Stadium.

"We had success here at home, but on the road it was very difficult for us," Brunell said. "Outside of those two touchdown drives at the end, they really shut us down."

FOOTBALL | Yeah, What We Need Is Rowdier Detroit Fans Winning is one way to make Lions fans happy, but state Rep. Leon Drolet, R-Macomb Township, has another idea. Drolet has proposed legislation to allow fans to start buying alcohol at dawn and wave signs calling for the firing, impeachment or dismemberment of management, the Detroit Free Press reported. Drolet has named his legislation the Sports Fans Bill of Rights. Alcohol sales would start at 7 a.m. instead of noon on Sunday for fans who tailgate. (EXPRESS)

TAME THE TIGER: LSU will have to figure out a way to stop the Tigers' seemingly unstoppable running back, Kenny Irons, if it's to challenge Auburn on Saturday.

The SEC Has A New Rivalry

Auburn vs. LSU is the Florida-Tennessee of the new millennium

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | It's September, and two Southeastern Conference division rivals with legitimate national title hopes are meeting in a high-stakes game with compelling story lines.

What else is new?

Here's the twist: It's No. 3 Auburn vs. No. 6 LSU and a rivalry doing its best to emerge as this decade's version of Florida-Tennessee in the 1990s.

Then again, the seventh-ranked Gators and 13th-ranked Volunteers play in a significant game Saturday night, too. One day, two games, four highly ranked teams from the same league.

"It's a big day for the SEC," Auburn coach Tommy Tuberville said.

First, there's the best of the West, with LSU at Auburn. Then, 4½ hours later, two beasts of the East, with Florida at Tennessee at Knoxville.

The Auburn-LSU winner has captured the SEC West four of the past five years. But the stakes have gone well beyond that recently. In 2003, LSU won 31-7 en route to a BCS national championship. The following season, Auburn escaped with a 10-9 win and finished 13-0 and ranked No. 2.

"It's the team that we've played for the Western Division championship most of the time in the 21st century," Tuberville said.

While Auburn-LSU has become quite the rivalry the past few years, Florida-Tennessee started it all.

Florida's Urban Meyer, who won his debut against the Vols last season, seems to understand the importance of the rivalry.

"This is why you get up in the morning, and go to work and shave and take care of yourself because you want to coach and play in a game like this," Meyer said. (AP)

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Best Bets: Fantasy owners have been clawing at their faces all year trying to figure out who will be the starting running back in Denver. Well, put some Neosporin on those scratches, because we can now definitely say the starter is TATUM BELL. If Packers starter AHMAN GREEN goes down with injury—and he often does, sometimes out of habit—NOAH HERRON will get a shot at running the ball now that SAMKON GADO has been shipped from Green Bay. Take Herron if you also have Ah-man-my-leg-hurts Green.

Not a Chance: When the Seahawks wanted to upgrade their receiving corps this offseason, NATE BURLESON was an easy choice, based on the one constant truism of all sports: When a player is good for a half a year, that means they are good forever. JERRY PORTER talked his way right on down the depth chart, and ALVIS WHITTED will get the start. Of course, unless he can telepathically correct the trajectory of quarterback AARON BROOKS' errant passes, it probably doesn't matter all that much. CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

The Sign Of South Bend

Phrase has defined Notre Dame's football program for decades

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Laurie Wenger had no idea her simple painting would one day be a masterpiece that would inspire hundreds of football players and thousands of fans.

Twenty years ago, she was at her job painting signs at Notre Dame's arena when Irish assistant coach George Stewart delivered a request from new coach Lou Holtz.

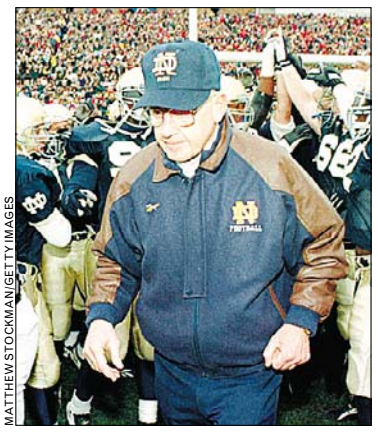

"He brought me a little sheet of paper that said, 'Play Like A Champion Today,'" Wenger said. "He said, 'Coach Holtz wants a sign, he wants it in blue and gold and he wants it for the stadium for the players to hit on their way out to the field.'"

It took Wenger about a week to paint the 4-foot-high by 3-foot-wide wooden sign, preparing the wood, priming it, painting it gold and then hand lettering it in blue.

"I worked like a bandit on it and got it to him as quickly as possible," she said. "The rest is history."

The sign, which Wenger had to touch up once about 10 years ago, has become another tradition on the tradition-laden campus. The Notre Dame players don't know the history behind the sign, but they all touch it on their way out to the field. Coach Holtz talked about the sign after leaving Notre Dame in 1996.

"I'll think about touching the 'Play Like a Champion' sign," he said. I'll relive it every week, and I'll have the fondest memories." (AP)

PHIL COALE/AP

STAR RECEIVER: Terrell Owens catches his first touchdown pass of the season in a 24-17 loss to Jacksonville last Sunday. He had six catches for 80 yards in Week 1.

T.O. Begins to Show His Age

Wide receiver is finally maturing into a team player for the Cowboys

FOOTBALL | Here's the best example yet of Terrell Owens' living up to his vow of being "a better teammate" now that he's with the Dallas Cowboys: He's refusing to share his opinion about a brewing quarterback controversy between Drew Bledsoe and Tony Romo.

He even finds it funny he's being asked.

"Quarterback controversy?" he said Wednesday, rolling his eyes and laughing. "We're not even going to talk about that unless I move to the defensive side of the ball, become a defensive end or something like that. Any quarterback questions, don't ask me."

Bledsoe started strong, then faded, and so did the Cowboys. He threw three interceptions and Dallas lost 24-17 to Jacksonville. Only four quarterbacks had a worse rating last weekend than his 45.8.

Perhaps the best way for Bledsoe to bail himself out would be throwing more to T.O., who for all his antics remains one of the league's best receivers.

Owens finished the first game with six catches for 80 yards, including a nifty touchdown grab that gave the Cowboys hopes of forcing overtime. T.O. had the most catches on the team and the only one for a touchdown; two more receptions for another 31 yards were nullified by penalties. Hmm, maybe that explains why Owens is standing up for his quarterback.

"I have all the confidence in the world he will bounce back completely," Owens said.

"We're both out there trying to help each other," he said. (AP)

HEAD TO HEAD

TERRELL OWENS

CARLOS ROGERS

When he keeps his mouth shut, Terrell Owens is one of the game's best receivers. He is an amazing athlete with blazing speed and the height to outjump shorter cornerbacks like Washington's Carlos Rogers, who will match up on him on Sunday. Rogers must play him physically and not allow him into space. The key will be not letting Owens burn him downfield and preventing big plays.

Why just nosh when you can feast already?

With Rosh Hashanah right around the corner, isn't it time you thought about what you will be serving this year? Balducci's is here to help make your holiday meal something really special with classic dishes like:

- Traditional Beef Brisket with slow braised vegetables
- Honey Glazed Roast Chicken with pomegranate apples
- Noodle Kugel with apples, dried cranberries & golden raisins
- Carrot Tsimmes with dried pears and figs
- Sweet Apple or Honey Cake

Maris Should Be in the Hall

ASSUMING PITCHERS STOP walking him, Ryan Howard is going to end up with somewhere near 61 home runs this year.

It's still a magic number, made all the more special by revelations and suspicions of what Mark McGwire, Sammy Sosa and Barry Bonds did to surpass it.

> "Instead of losing his hair due to steroid use ... Maris lost his from stress."

No one is saying the Philadelphia Phillies' MVP candidate should be lumped in with that crowd. And no one here is saying that if Howard reaches 62 homers, he should own the true single-season record.

Erasing history is a tough thing to do. And unless baseball steps up to the plate to punish those who tarnished the game, the record books won't be altered.

Instead of harping on drugs, though, maybe we should pay tribute to the player Howard may chase down this season: Roger Maris.

RUSTY KENNEDY/AP

The Phillies' Ryan Howard should end up right around 61 homers this season.

Maris wasn't a great player — though he had two amazing seasons in which he won consecutive MVP awards — which is why he isn't in the Hall of Fame.

The second year, 1961, is what everyone remembers. Overshadowed by Mickey Mantle and booed by his hometown fans, Maris toppled Babe Ruth and became a baseball immortal in his own right.

Instead of losing his hair due to steroid use like more recent sluggers, Maris lost his from stress due to death threats.

The word "fame" is part of that illustrious Hall, and how much more famous can you be than being the one who beat the Babe?

It's time to give Maris his due in the Hall, just as we enjoy Howard's hopefully clean chase to 61.

So Far, It's a Push

Since blockbuster deal, the Nats have mostly been treading water

NATIONALS | When the Washington Nationals acquired right fielder Austin Kearns and shortstop Felipe Lopez from the Cincinnati Reds in an eight-player swap during the All-Star break, baseball fans rushed to declare who got the best of the deal.

Some said it was the Nationals, who picked up a power bat in Kearns and a speedster in Lopez. Reliever Ryan Wagner was a project, but the organization was hopeful he could help fill the sudden void in the bullpen.

Some said the Reds were the winners, picking up solid relievers in Gary Majewski and Bill Bray, along with versatile infielders Royce Clayton and Brendan Harris. Minor league pitcher Daryl Thompson was their project.

And Kearns saw it as one piece of the new owners' plans to make the Nats winners.

"I think what's taking place here with the new ownership definitely means good things for the future," he said.

Though the full significance of the deal will reveal itself over a span of years, the immediate verdict for the Washington Nationals is a push.

PRESTON KERES/T WP

BIG BAT: Austin Kearns has hit just .241 since joining the Nats in a midseason trade.

The Nats weren't too good before the July 13 trade. And they're not too good right now.

At the All-Star break, Washington was 38-52, with a .422 winning percentage. In 56 games since, the Nats are 24-32 for a .428 mark, a negligible improvement.

What's telling is that since the deal, as expected, the Nationals' offense has improved. Pitching, meanwhile, has been on the decline.

Kearns and Lopez both brought needed dimensions to the Nationals' batting order. Kearns has been a natural fit in the No. 5 spot. Though he's hit just .241 since joining the club, he has come through with several timely home runs. Lopez has provided the club with a prototypical No. 2 hitter behind Alfonso Soriano.

Predictably, with the loss of Majewski and Bray, the pitching staff has suffered, going from a 5.08 ERA before the break to a league-worst 5.38 mark since.

So, the early results are in. But if this trade is to be considered a success in the long run, general manager Jim Bowden will have to add consistent pitching to the newfound offensive punch. DEREK TURNER

ON THE CUTTING EDGE: Capitals star Alex Ovechkin became just the second rookie in league history to surpass both 50 goals (52) and 100 points (106) last year.

What's Next For Ovechkin?

Last year's rookie set the bar high; now it's time to think playoffs

CAPITALS | What can last year's rookie of the year do to get better?

That very question stumped Washington Capitals coach Glen Hanlon, who paused five seconds before giving an answer.

"That's hard," Hanlon finally said. "I'm not sure what Glen Sather said about Gretzky after his first year — I should have phoned and asked him."

Sather had the pleasure of coaching NHL rookie Wayne Gretzky in 1979, and Hanlon enjoyed the arrival of Alex Ovechkin last year. After a season in which the Russian became the second rookie in league history to surpass 50 goals (52) and 100 points (106), Ovechkin is already to the point where he can be referenced in the same sentence as the greatest player of all time.

"You get to a level where Alexander is, and you are evaluated over time," Hanlon said. "The great players are the ones who can do it year-in, year-out, and we will see that with Alexander. I think it's just a matter of time. This player doesn't have a drop-off."

Ovechkin and his teammates reported Thursday for training camp, which begins with the first practices Friday in Ashburn, Va. As much as the hockey world is wondering what Ovechkin can do for an encore, the more important question is: What can the Capitals do for him?

If the team is to win a Stanley Cup with Ovechkin as the centerpiece, it's time to start heading in that direction.

"Our goal this year is not to be satisfied with working hard every night — that should be a given," goaltender Olie Kolzig said. "I think our goal this year is to try to make the playoffs." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Dead Onscreen

De Palma's turgid 'The Black Dahlia' is based on a good story

FILM | Brian De Palma and "The Black Dahlia" are a natural fit, a filmmaker with a gift — or curse — for crafting visceral, lurid imagery, and a story that's heavy on bloody evisceration.

That's not to say the result is a good movie. This fictionalized tale of two Los Angeles detectives assigned to the gruesome 1940s murder of a real-life wannabe starlet begins as a slow but intriguing character study that gradually unravels into a turgid mess.

Adapted from James Ellroy's noir mystery thriller, "The Black Dahlia" is something of a return to form for the director behind such moody, stylized and often grisly crime sagas as "Scarface," "The Untouchables" and "Dressed to Kill."

Yet like so many De Palma pictures, the convoluted story gets choked amid the flash and flourishes of the filmmaker's visual excess, and characters who start out promisingly idiosyncratic become caricatures by the end.

A deliberately paced prologue establishes the rapport between cops Bucky Bleichert (Josh Hartnett) and Lee Blanchard (Aaron Eckhart). Bucky forges a strange threesome with Lee and his girlfriend, Kay Lake (Scarlett Johansson), who keeps her two "super cops" always on hand.

Then Lee and Bucky are assigned to the murder of Betty Short (Mia Kirshner), an aspiring actress who was savagely slain, mutilated and sliced in half in 1947, her death a tabloid crime that remains unsolved today.

Lee obsesses on the case even as dark secrets from his past endanger him. Bucky's legwork leads him into a relationship with a spoiled rich girl, Madeleine Linscott (Hilary Swank), who bears a shadowy link to Betty, known in the press as the Black Dahlia for her raven hair and the flower that adorned it.

The screenplay by Josh Friedman is heavy on voice-overs delivered with ponderous lethargy by Hartnett, the actor aiming for the crisp bluntness of classic film-noir narration but instead sounding like a bored English student mumbling through a book report.

Give It an 'O' for 'Outstanding'

'Not Yet Rated' bestows low marks on the film board

FILM | The title of Kirby Dick's documentary "This Film Is Not Yet Rated" is inaccurate: The film, which contains graphic sex, is rated NC-17.

That classification is a badge of honor for a film which dissects Hollywood's procedures for measuring objectionable material.

Dick cops an absurdist tone to tell the story of an oft-absurd, sometimes surreal method whereby an anonymous panel supposedly representative of the "average American family" hands out ratings.

IFC FILMS

IN HER SIGHTS: Lindsey Howell and Becky Altringer check up on board members.

The interviews in "This Film" are largely with filmmakers and actors who have run afoul of the board and critics of the system.

Interspersed among the interviews are clever animated sequences and amusing segments of Dick attempting to discover the identities and duties of board members.

Dick's general conclusions echo what critics have been saying since the system came into being in the '60s: Filmmakers are given fuzzy guidance on how to receive lower ratings; the board is lax on violence and prudish on sex; procedures are secretive and the appeals process inadequate; and independent films are rated more harshly than those from the big studios that formed the MPAA.

Dick submitted an early cut of his film for an MPAA rating, then added a postscript that gives the documentary its potent, Kafkaesque climax. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

I got VIP tickets to the Virgin Festival next week. Any hints on how to make the most of them?
Make frequent use of the nice bathrooms you'll get to use. There will also be VIP areas in the grandstand and near the stage if you don't want to deal with the masses. Try not to plan every minute of the day. Pick four bands you want to see and take the rest as it goes. And sometimes a band you didn't have much interest in will be a nice surprise.

A Passing Cad

An eternal nice guy plays a jerk in the uneven 'Last Kiss'

FILM | If names like Tony Goldwyn and Paul Haggis weren't attached, you'd swear "The Last Kiss" was just another Edward Burns movie.

Four guys, longtime best friends, all reach a crisis point in their respective relationships as they approach 30. And they're all sensitive enough to express their fears and frustrations in hyperarticulate terms.

Michael (Zach Braff) is reluctant to marry his pregnant girlfriend, Jenna (Jacinda Barrett), even though she's obviously a smart, beautiful, cool woman. Fearing being tied down and longing for some surprise in his life — he's an architect, yawn — he ends up having a fling with a vivacious college student (Rachel Bilson) he met at a wedding.

PARAMOUNT

THEY GROW UP SO FAST: Rachel Bilson and Zach Braff outgrow their TV selves.

And so on.

There are some amusingly crass moments here and there. But Goldwyn is tonally all over the place, veering between wackiness and melodrama, between cute, intimate moments and bold sexuality.

Once Jenna discovers Michael's infidelity, the result is screaming and crying, slapped faces and slammed doors, followed by proclamations of love and the obligatory, melancholy Coldplay song.

It gets shrill and it feels like it will never end. CHRISTY LEMIRE (AP)

Prevention. The overall goal in lowering high blood pressure is to prevent the development of other harmful effects. Even a slight decrease in blood pressure could have lasting effects on quality of life including lowering the chances of heart failure, stroke, heart attack and kidney failure.

Our physicians are conducting a research study of the investigational use of approved medications, used in combination, to see if they effectively lower blood pressure.

Adults with high blood pressure who have never experienced heart failure, heart attack or stroke may qualify to participate.

Jazz Looks East

Kenny Garrett blends his own music with lessons from Asia

MUSIC | Kenny Garrett's love for Asian culture is hardly a secret within the jazz community. He's expressed that affection on tracks on the discs "Happy People" and "Standard of Language." But on his newest disc, "Beyond the Wall," Garrett announces his fascination with the East explicitly.

Garrett took it upon himself to learn Japanese after a European told him that Americans were lazy about learning other languages. After that, he explored Korean culture, which eventually led to China, the country he calls "the source."

Inspired largely by a three-week visit to Beijing, Garrett wanted to find the connections between Chinese and African spirituals. He discovered a commonality in the pentatonic scales. Songs like the haunting "Realization (Marching Towards the Light)," on which he employs a Tibetan chant and the gentle "Tsunami Song," which features violin, cello, harp and the erhu (Chinese two-string fiddle) may raise eyebrows because of their intriguing instrumentation. But if you're fond of the smoldering if hypnotic modal jazz of John Coltrane's mid-'60s, "Beyond the Wall" will sound more familiar than you might initially think.

Certainly the Coltranesque overtones come by way of Garrett's searing, soulful improvisations on alto saxophone. Fashioning a bright, sometimes acerbic tone, Garrett loves to whip out prolix essays, distinguished by irregular melodies and rhythms, and multiphonic shrieks, screams and skronks. Adding more Coltrane-like mystic is the presence of legendary tenor saxophonist and former Coltrane protégé Pharaoh Sanders on five compositions. (Like Garrett, Sanders is prone to boisterous expressions.)

For the three days, starting Friday at Blues Alley, Sanders will join Garrett and his quartet. Expect impressions of China through an Afrocentric jazz lens. JOHN MURPH

TV Tribute Planned For Irwin

CREATURE FEATURE | A stingray ended Steve Irwin's life, but Animal Planet is ensuring the enthusiastic "Crocodile Hunter's" legacy will live on with tributes, memorials and specials on the cable network that became identified with his adventures.

Animal Planet will air a 15-hour package, "Croc Rules! Remembering Steve Irwin," from noon to 3 a.m. on Sunday, featuring the best of Irwin's programs as well as interviews with celebrities and crew members who knew Irwin and promotions for his Wildlife Warriors conservation fund.

"It's very important that the message he was trying to get out stay out there. We feel one thing we can do to keep his legacy alive is to keep the show on the air," said Dan Russell, vice president of programming for Animal Planet. LYNN SMITH (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Nightlife Agenda

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO DO TONIGHT? BY FRITZ HAHN, RHOME ANDERSON AND DAVID MALITZ

FRIDAY

Andy Rourke may have been a great bassist for the Smiths, but his DJing skills are questionable: He just puts on his favorite CDs. If you like Ride, Oasis, New Order, the Charlatans, Joy Division, the Smiths, etc., head to the first night of THE ROCK AND ROLL HOTEL'S grand opening weekend. Admission and cans of Sparks are free from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. The show's open to those 18 and over.

Hip-hop was born as party music and Ludacris has party hits for days. Throw them bows and get wild with Atlanta's favorite son (we'll take Ludacris over T.I.) at LOVE.

MAGNOLIA PICTURES

SATURDAY

In what's becoming an annual tradition, hip-hop godfather Afrika Bambaataa — the block-party-rockin' Bronx DJ who gave us the classic "Planet Rock," set the template for electro and founded Zulu Nation — is joining a slew of local artists to raise money for the International Red Cross at an all-night dance party. The third Funk for Peace, which takes over FIVE from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m., finds Bam paired with Thunderball, the retro '60s funk/boogaloo/exotica duo who have a new album out on Eighteenth Street Lounge Records; highly recommended funky house producers and DJs Fort Knox Five; the always-impressive All Good Funk Alliance; and DJ Rex Riddim. There's a $10 cover.

Marky Ramone — the fifth Ramone, as it were, who replaced original drummer Tommy in time for 1978's classic "Road to Ruin" — has been busy since the band broke up in 1996, playing with the Misfits, the Intruders and others. Marky, one of the last living members of The Greatest Punk Band, also played on Richard Hell and the Voidoids's classic "Blank Generation." What will he spin when he DJs at THE ROCK AND ROLL HOTEL tonight? Expect classic LoudFastRules punk, heavy on the New York tip. Joining Ramone are DJs Ris Richards, formerly of Q and Not U, and Alex English, the founder of New York City electro/Britpop/indie nights GBH and Girls and Boys. Cover is $10. We'll be shocked if the club doesn't hit its 400-person capacity.

Euronet International's throwing a rooftop party at THE EMBASSY ROW HILTON that promises DJs spinning salsa and Middle Eastern dance beats and a great view of Rock Creek Park and the Potomac. Euronet's events attract a crowd in its late 20s and 30s, so people looking to avoid students and interns should find this to be a good opportunity to hang out and meet people in the same predicament. Tickets are $10 in advance from EuronetInternational.com or $15 at the door.

SCOTT GRIES/GETTY IMAGES

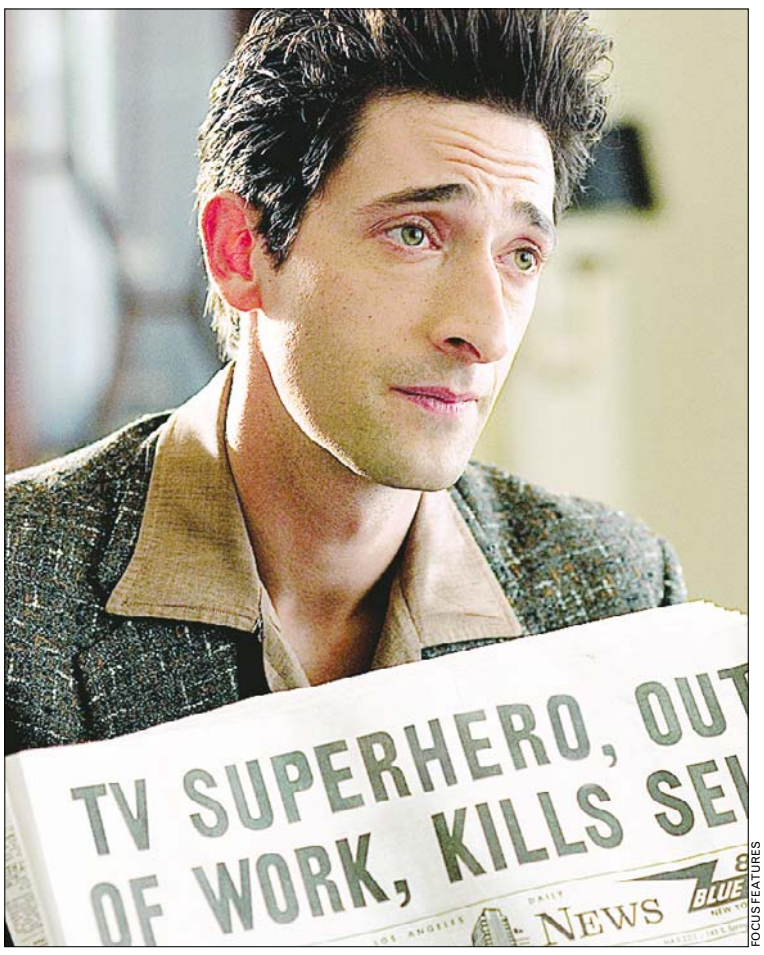

Afrika Bambaataa, perhaps the most important hip-hopper ever, gigs at Five.

FOCUS FEATURES

TARNISHED TINSELTOWN: Adrien Brody co-stars as a detective in "Hollywoodland."

Now Playing

ACCEPTED (PG-13, 90 minutes) Bartleby Gaines (Justin Long) can't bear to tell his folks that he has been rejected by every college to which he applied. To save face, he falsifies an acceptance letter from an institution he has made up. The parents buy the hoax, and so do hundreds of other burnouts, and stoners, airheads and strippers. This fluffy teen comedy gets annoying fast. ADRIANE QUINLAN

ANOTHER GAY MOVIE (Unrated, 92 minutes) Writer-director Todd Stephens has produced a painfully derivative take on raunchy teen sex comedies. Michael Carbonaro, Jonathan Chase, Jonah Blechman and Mitch Morris play best friends who still haven't lost their virginity by their high school graduation; each embodies a tired stereotype. (AH)

THE ANT BULLY (PG, 80 minutes) Lucas Nickle (voice of Zach Tyler Eisen), a boy regularly creamed by tougher kids, takes his rage out on the backyard anthill. But a wizard figures out some chemical stuff capable of shrinkage on a massive scale, and hello, 15mm boy! Lucas sees the error of his ways, and soon, like the ants, he's a stalwart warrior. The movie is an epic adventure with a rigorously moral point of view. (SH)

BARNYARD (PG, 83 minutes) Male "cows" with pink teats? Not so easy to get past. Yet that's what can be found in a movie where the animals throw barn dances and watch TV once the farmer closes shop for the night. The film's premise is a lot like that of the much better "The Lion King." This movie will entertain kids, not grown-ups. JENNIFER FREY

BEERFEST (R, 110 minutes) Brothers Jan and Todd (Paul Soter and Erik Stolhanske) head to Munich to spread Grandpapa's ashes but end up involved in the Secret Beer Olympics, a world-class chugging contest with games like pong and darts and quarters. This film does anything for a laugh, no matter how puerile, silly or offensive. (SH)

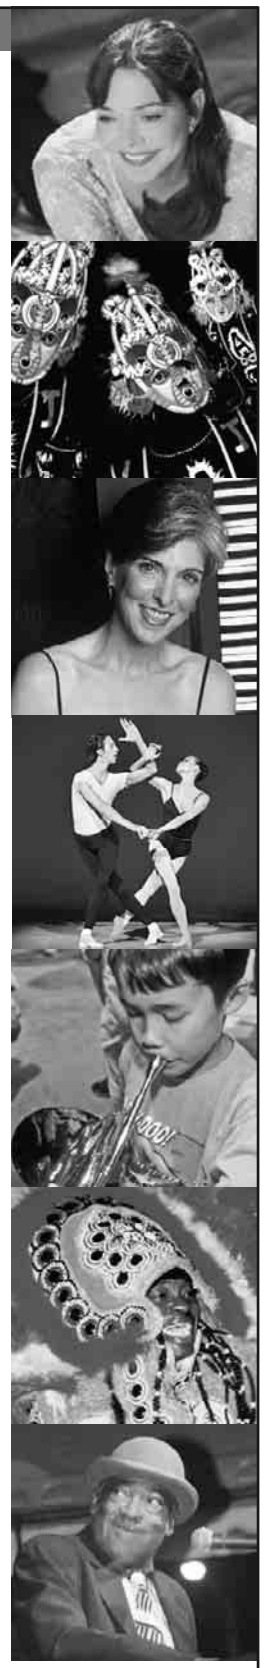

BOYNTON BEACH CLUB (Unrated, 105 minutes) This movie studies a rebonding ritual among newly partnerless young-elderlies (say, 55 to 65) at the famous Florida retirement town. These folks want society, life, intimacy. There are plenty of reasons to like the movie; one is its superb cast of discarded '70s-era Hollywood stars such as Sally Kellerman, Joseph Bologna, Michael Nouri and Dyan Cannon. (SH)

CARS (G, 116 minutes) Our hero, Lightning McQueen (the voice of Owen Wilson), is a sleek, red sportster on the racing circuit. He ends up stranded in a town called "Radiator Springs." He interacts with the townspeople, falls in love and learns a little something. This is the latest concoction from the geniuses at Pixar, and it's great fun. (SH)

CLERKS II (R, 98 minutes) Dante and Randal are back and have grown up only slightly. This sequel finds them still bantering with customers, having movie geek-offs (the "Star Wars" vs. "Lord of the Rings" argument is priceless) and relishing crude innuendo. This is a lewd, lascivious, exhilaratingly life-affirming celebration of misfits and the misfits who love them. (AH)

THE COVENANT (PG-13, 97 minutes) Four prep school dudes carry on a 17th-century tradition: They have psychic abilities to unlock doors, swoop into the air and cause objects to hurtle like nuclear missiles. In this uninspired composite of "X-Men" and "Harry Potter," the reluctant leader, Caleb (Steven Strait), and his friends are trying their best to keep their secret from the staff and students of Spenser Academy. But spooky developments threaten to blow things wide open. Director Renny Harlin pays homoerotic homage to youth and beauty, cranks up the heavy metal and backlights the omnipresent rain. DESSON THOMSON

CRANK (R, 83 minutes) Older readers may recall a classic film noir called "D.O.A." That 1950 film was about a small-town businessman who is poisoned and has just 48 hours to live. The death sentence actually galvanizes his life, and he becomes a driven hero. Great movie. This film's "D.O.A." on meth. It pops you one way, then the other in a frenetic rush. The action is completely overheated, and the thing moves so fast that it never makes sense. (SH)

CROSSOVER (PG-13, 95 minutes) With a few tweaks, this could be a terrible movie for the ages. But nooo, this street ball flick — about two Detroit friends (Anthony Mackie and Wesley Jonathan) who live for slam-dunks, each other and getting an education — has to settle for merely lousy. (DT)

THE DEVIL WEARS PRADA (PG-13, 109 minutes) Meryl Streep plays Miranda Priestly, the driven, demanding editor in chief of Runway, the bible of New York fashion magazines. Miranda's latest hire is Andy Sachs (Anne Hathaway), the smart girl who eschews fashion (at first) and arrives at her job at Runway head-to-toe out of place. She wants to be a serious writer. Can Andy survive a year of Miranda and win a recommendation that will get her in the door at any magazine in Manhattan? Streep makes it work. JENNIFER FREY

FACTOTUM (R, 94 minutes) Henry Chinaski (Matt Dillon) is a struggling writer who supports himself in a series of low-paying jobs, none of which he's able to keep. He loves to drink, a passion he shares with a fellow loner named Jan (Lili Taylor). Together they embark on a tawdry, toxic folie a deux. Chief among the many pleasures of "Factotum," based on the autobiographical novel of the same name by Charles Bukowski, are its surprises, even in the midst of the monotony of a drunk's life. (AH)

HALF NELSON (R, 106 minutes) Ryan Gosling plays Dan Dunne, a junior high school teacher in Brooklyn who tries to teach Hegelian dialectics by day and smokes crack by night. Dan seems to be cracking between the pressures of his ideals and a sense of cynicism and futility. The good news in Dan's life is a promising student, Audrey, played in a revelatory debut by Shareeka Epps. Nearly every scene rings with ragged truth. (AH)

HEADING SOUTH (R, 108 minutes) Legba (Menothy Cesar) is black, beautiful and perhaps 18. The setting's a sultry beach resort in Papa Doc's brutal Haiti in the late '70s. The rule for the Westerners — Ellen (Charlotte Rampling), Brenda (Karen Young) and Sue (Louise Portal) — is: Enjoy, but don't get involved. What happens is horrible, and perhaps its biggest horror is how helpful it is to be Westerners. The film is a piercing indictment, though it makes its point without much hectoring or preening. (SH)

HOLLYWOODLAND (R, 126 minutes) On the night of June 16, 1959, George Reeves, the handsome, affable star of the TV hit "Adventures of Superman," was found with a bullet through his brain in his L.A. home. This film, with Ben Affleck, Diane Lane and Adrien Brody, investigates his death. It reaches no conclusions but speculates on the possibilities in an evenhanded way. It's almost a good movie. (SH)

HOW TO EAT FRIED WORMS (PG, 93 minutes) This mild examination of school bullying, based on Thomas Rockwell's novel, chronicles the ordeal of a new kid, Billy (Luke Benward), in a suburban grade school, as inflicted on him by Joe (Adam Hicks). Taunts escalate into threats, and Joe bluffs poor Billy into a bet: Billy must eat 10 worms or show up in class with his pants full of worms. (SH)

IDLEWILD (R, 121 minutes) OutKast's Prohibition-era musical shouldn't work, but does. For all its shortcomings, "Idlewild" has things few films can pull off: Moments of pure cinematic fabulousness, breathtaking dance sequences and idiosyncratic 3-D animation flourishes. (TW)

THE ILLUSIONIST (PG-13, 109 minutes) Edward Norton plays Eisenheim, an illusionist who has become the toast of aristocratic Vienna. He is being watched by Chief Inspector Uhl (Paul Giamatti), who, when a smoky image finally appears, promptly arrests him. The movie then backtracks to Eisenheim's beginnings as a poor boy, his friendship with a spirited young duchess and the downfall of their budding romance. The movie is a subtle, eerie augury of the cataclysm that lies ahead for Austria as well. However, it can't overcome a fatal inertness. (AH)

AN INCONVENIENT TRUTH (PG, 100 minutes) This documentary follows Al Gore on his world tour, in which he warns audiences that humankind faces dire consequences if it doesn't curb carbon dioxide emissions. Although Gore's presentation tells us nothing new, it has a renewed potency in light of growing

SOMEWHERE, A LITTLE DEREK JETER IS CRYING

A Familiar Game

A SCRAWNY LITTLE BOY, growing up in the shadow of Yankee Stadium during the Depression worshipping Babe Ruth, learns self-esteem when he goes on an adventure with a talking baseball and the Bambino's beloved bat. "Everyone's Hero" is exceedingly earnest with its feel-good message of perseverance, which ordinarily would make it an easy target for trashing. The kindest thing we can say is this: The movie means well and, like t-ball, it's probably best suited for the littlest kids only. Rob Reiner, Whoopi Goldberg and Brian Dennehy are among the vocal cast. CHRISTY LEMIRE (AP) animated story of a boy who discovers that the house across the way is a monster with a voracious appetite for children just his age, this movie is a grisly, often cynical piece of work whose joyless, aggressive spirit is made even less appealing by its soulless visual style. The story is by turns tiresome and terrifying. (AH)

PIRATESOFTHECARIBBEAN:DEADMAN'SCHEST (PG-13, 140 minutes) Will Turner (Orlando Bloom) is dispatched to steal Jack Sparrow's (Johnny Depp) mystical compass, which is believed to lead to the chest containing the soul of Davy Jones. And Elizabeth Swann (Keira Knightley) stows away aboard Sparrow's ship to find fiance Will, who's presumed lost. The movie's most entertaining feature is its computer-generated creations. (DT)

THE PROTECTOR (R, 84 minutes) Thai action hero Tony Jaa plays Kham, whose family for generations has looked after the prized elephants of Thai kings. When two of his elephants are stolen and smuggled into Australia, he travels to Sydney, where he runs afoul of the police, the venomous chief of a local crime syndicate and all manner of baddies. There's not much here for anyone who isn't a die-hard chop-socky junkie. (AH)

QUINCEAÑERA (R, 95 minutes) The scene is L.A.'s Echo Park, a neighborhood in transition. Magdalena is about to turn 15 and pregnant; her cousin Carlos is 16 and gay in a macho culture. Directors Richard Glatzer and Wash Westmoreland make many safe choices, but the film looks realistically at some dubious civic practices and is honest about the painful feelings of kids, coupled with their need for love and guidance. (AH)

A SCANNER DARKLY (R, 100 minutes) Without its animation, this would have made a fine cautionary tale about drug addiction, paranoia and institutional treachery in a police state. But with a technique that turns the existing live action into a cartoon, the movie becomes its own living, breathing metaphor. (DT)

SNAKES ON A PLANE (R, 106 minutes) This movie's highest level of artistic expression was the ingenious Internet campaign. The thing itself turns out to be pretty much an afterthought, cheesy and not very well worked out. Once the basic situation is defined, the movie just reiterates itself time and time again. (SH)

SUPERMAN RETURNS (PG-13, 154 minutes) Superman's been gone for five years, but he returns to Earth to find that Lois Lane (Kate Bosworth) now has a child and a boyfriend, and Lex Luthor (Kevin Spacey) has started a new shenanigan. What's missing? Oh, right, a plot. But the bottom line is that Superman has returned, and you will believe that a man can fly and virtue is its own reward. (SH)

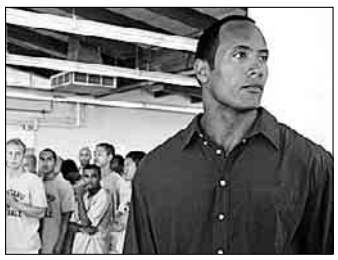

TALLADEGA NIGHTS: THE BALLAD OF RICKY BOBBY (PG-13, 105 minutes) This NASCAR sendup starring Will Ferrell doesn't do much more than go for the quick guffaw, frequently from stereotypical slights along the redneck vein. (TW)

WICKER MAN (PG-13, 115 minutes) Directed by Neil LaBute from a far better 1973 original, the movie is about a pre-Christian agricultural cult that secretly practices ritual sacrifice. (SH)

WORLD TRADE CENTER (PG-13, 125 minutes) Oliver Stone's film about Port Authority officers John McLoughlin and Will Jimeno (played by Nicolas Cage and Michael Peña), begins Sept. 11, 2001, when the two officers and their colleagues have just started the day's work, and the first plane strikes the North Tower. While it's scrupulous in portraying the details of that day, it's short on dramatic revelations that could have resonated on a deeper level. (DT)

CAN YOU SMELL WHAT THE ROCK IS COACHING?

Rushing as Rehab

RUNNING ALONGSIDE the closing credits of "Gridiron Gang" is a series of clips from the 1993 documentary that provided the basis for this drama about a football team at a Los Angeles juvenile detention center. Director Phil Joanou is relentless in his attempts to inspire us, but the result is overbearing and redundant. The football scenes themselves, though, are sufficiently visceral in their bone-crunching intensity. And Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson exudes his usual natural magnetism as the probation officer turned coach. CHRISTY LEMIRE (AP)

A PART FOR EVERYONE: Cross-dressing comedian Eddie Izzard is one of the new faces on deck to join the cast of "24" this season. Fox said he'll play a "villainous accomplice." James Cromwell will also appear as Jack Bauer's father.

Television

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

IT DOESN'T GET FUNNIER

After a Tuesday preview, the whimsical hour-long comedy MEN IN TREES (ABC) moves to its regular night. Viewers can catch two episodes tonight, the series pilot (Fri., 8 p.m.) and the second episode (9 p.m.), in which Anne Heche finds herself stalked by critters.

SANDY TALES

SAHARA (Sun., 8 p.m., History) offers a two-hour survey of the history, the climate and the mystique of the world's largest, hottest and most alluring desert. The Sahara was once home to lush vegetation, fish, crocodiles and hippos before a shift in the earth's axis changed the climate of the region swiftly and utterly.

SCRIPT BY AL GORE

AVATAR: THE LAST AIRBENDER (Fri., 8 p.m., Nickelodeon) In this epic tale, the world is in peril because the four forces of nature are out of balance. Two impish kids discover the Avatar in a glacier and hope that he can set things right. The dialogue and action bounces between teenage hijinx and deadly serious combat.

In other animated action, the Teen Titans get their own feature-length movie, TEEN TITANS: TROUBLE IN TOKYO (Fri., 7:30 p.m., Cartoon Network).

HISTORY CHANNEL

OASIS: The History Channel sifts through the secrets of the "Sahara."

THE BEARER OF BAD NEWS

AIR: AMERICA'S INVESTIGATIVE REPORTS (Fri., 10 p.m., PBS, check local listings) looks at how NPR reporter Daniel Zwerdling broke the story of the systematic mistreatment of immigrant detainees in prisons located on U.S. soil.

ABOVE-AVERAGENESS

Are geniuses born or nurtured? Will the genetic offspring of brainy people be smart? Can games and gadgets "teach" your baby to become a young Einstein? Is there a difference between savants and geniuses? Dr. Sanjay Gupta explores these and other questions on GENIUS (Sun., 10 p.m., CNN).

YOU KNOW IT'S HARD OUT HERE FOR SOME PIMP JOKES

Stand-up comedy from KATT WILLIAMS: THE PIMP CHRONICLES, PART I (Sat., 10 p.m., HBO).

CULT CHOICE

Invited by TCM to play programmer for the afternoon, NASCAR veteran Kyle Petty chose director Tod Browning's 1932 sideshow shocker FREAKS (Sat., noon) as well as GRAND PRIX (1:15 p.m.), the noirish D.O.A. (4:30 p.m.) and the classic CASABLANCA (6 p.m.).

CURL UP WITH SHORTIES

Turner Classic Movies will devote an entire day to short films. Many of these works are from directors who would go on to greater fame. Highlights include Chris Marker's LA JETEE (Fri., 7:30 p.m., TCM), a 28-minute French film from 1962 about a time traveler's attempt to prevent war. This story was later expanded into the 1995 film "12 Monkeys."

Short movies by DAVID LYNCH (9 p.m.) and MARTIN SCORSESE (9:45 p.m.) and Stanley Kubrick's 1951 short DAY OF THE FIGHT (10:30 p.m.) follow, as does BOY AND BICYCLE (midnight), directed by Ridley Scott in 1965. The wee hours bring shorts from FRANCOIS TRUFFAUT (2 a.m.), ROMAN POLANSKI (3 a.m.) and ALFRED HITCHCOCK (5 a.m.). KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

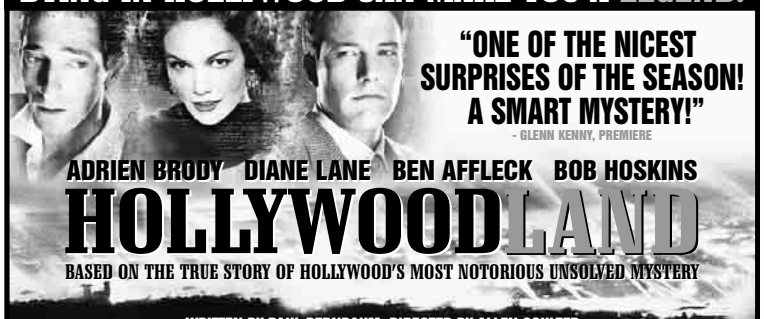

ARGOS FILMS

SANG TAN/AP

TRAVELIN' WOMAN: A guest leaves the International Students House, a London hostel that's not just for students anymore.

Travel

Once solely for the young and broke, hostels catering to all

Hostel Intent

Betty Kam, a 30-year-old teacher from Hong Kong, carefully planned her July vacation in Scotland. She plotted a detailed itinerary and reserved accommodations for each leg of her journey.

The only unusual thing about her trip: She decided to stay in hostels, long the preserve of young and spontaneous backpackers.

Kam is among a growing number of people choosing to book stays at hostels in pre-planned vacations, a departure from the adventurous, happy-go-lucky ethos that has long defined backpacking culture.

The trend springs from older travelers looking for cheap deals, easy access to city centers where many hostels are located, and a desire to experience a laid-back atmosphere.

"Customers have at least a rough itinerary and are less adventurous," said Niamh Ni Mhir, hostel division managing director of the Dublin-based online hostel company, hostelworld.com.

"The customers now say, 'I know I want to have a bed,' whereas five to 10 years ago people would line up outside hostels at 7 a.m. hoping for a bed, or at least a mattress on the floor at a discounted price."

Many of the world's hostels are changing to cater to the pre-planner.

Hostelworld.com, which lists more than 10,000 worldwide hostels on its Web site, books reservations for about 20,000 customers every day. Five years ago, only 1,000 people booked stays at a hostel. Ni Mhir attributed that partly to the growth of the Internet, but also to the changing profile of hostelers.

Katie Ricard, 27, has worked as a receptionist at Castle Rock Hostel in Edinburgh, Scotland, for the past three years. The Brisbane, Australia, native has seen an upswing in families and tourists in their 30s staying at the 270-bed hostel across from the famed Edinburgh Castle, along with teens just out of high school and long-termers.

"We get a lot more variety than we did even three years ago," Ricard said. "People want to enjoy the hostel atmosphere — like congregating in the kitchen or hanging out in the lounge — with more luxuries."

The new brand of hosteler is willing to pay more.

In general, hostel prices increased about $6.50 to $13 over the past five years. Travelers who would usually book a budget hotel room for $102 for four people now spend $26 per night in a hostel, Ni Mhir said.

The pre-planner also tends to want smaller hostels and rooms with more privacy.

"Our four-bed rooms are more expensive than our 10-bed rooms because the people who pre-plan want smaller rooms," said Laura Cuello, Groups and Agents Manor for Leinster Inn Hostel in London. "The people who stay in the bigger rooms are the wanderers. The rest seem to pre-book."

Cuello said 80 percent of reservations are booked in advance, meaning on weekends, many people who come unannounced get turned away for lack of space.

Some younger hostelers aren't happy about the trend of older travelers joining their ranks.

""The whole point of staying in a hostel is to meet new people and mingle, to socialize with younger, freer people," said Ivy Okoniewski, a 21-year-old student from Green Bay, Wis.

"Why do they want to be with younger people when they won't interact with the younger crowd?" she asked. "It's equivalent to a senior citizen wanting to live in a college dormitory." LAURA-CLAIRE CORSON (AP)

Metrobuses: Stopped Up

TRANSIT IN TANDEM | It's one of the great mysteries of public transportation. Why do buses bunch? It has something to do with traffic and the inevitability of crowds trying to board the first bus that arrives, causing it to slow down, which in turn causes the less-filled bus following it to catch up. Over on 16th Street Northwest during Thursday morning's rain, six buses arrived at the same time, reports STERFANIE.BLOGSPOT.COM.

The blogger has some suggestions for Metro. "Shouldn't there be some management science or operations model to keep the buses running on time and spread out? I mean, I never took those classes in grad school, but I certainly know they were offered!" MICHAEL GRASS (EXPRESS)

Is the Buck Passed?

D.C. POLITICS | Outgoing D.C. Mayor Anthony Williams and the Democratic nominee who will likely replace him, Adrian Fenty, went to Capitol Hill on Thursday to attend a hearing held by the House Judiciary Committee's Constitution subcommittee on proposed District voting rights legislation. The testimony was definitely important, but probably not as funny as it would seem by the picture above.

What do you think Williams is thinking here? (Remember, Williams endorsed Fenty's rival, D.C. Council Chairman Linda Cropp.) Send us your best caption idea to COMMENTS@READEXPRESS.COM.

Live Online

On the Marc

Metro columnist MARC FISHER was online Thursday to answer questions at washingtonpost.com about this week's primary elections in Maryland and Washington, and other local news.

Can you come clean with your readers on why you hate Montgomery County so much (re: your latest blast on the voting problems, which also occurred in Prince George's County and other jurisdictions)? Did you get a speeding ticket on River Road?

I didn't have a bad meal at Joe's Noodle House, either — a stellar example of MoCo's fine food offerings. No, I like Montgomery just fine. We kid because we love, or something like that.

Fenty uses two BlackBerrys to service one ward; now he'll need 16.

Buy the man a BlackBerry belt. Several e-mailers said that they expect that now that Fenty has won, he'll stop showing up in the neighborhoods. I disagree: I bet you see him in semipermanent campaign mode. The constant movement is essential not only to his style of governing. And he makes a reasonable argument that other big-city mayors have used this approach very effectively to ride hard on city workers and to raise expectations.

I'd appreciate your thoughts on a situation I'm in. A new family with young kids moved in next to us recently and want to let their kids play in our yard (they have a nice big yard of their own). The thing is, I found out that the father is a personal injury lawyer. If I let them play here, should I have them sign a waiver (only partially kidding)?

Unless you're the sort who loves to sue people, I'd let it go. What's wrong with someone's kids playing in your yard? As long as you're not at that moment out back shooting target practice, I don't see the problem.

Would you let William Donald Schaefer play in your yard?

He can be my yard monitor and also the barker for the home version of our Game of Life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may be coming dangerously close to fooling yourself about something that is more important to you than you know. Hear the wake-up call.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're in need of more mental stimulation than usual. If you're not puzzling over a new and tricky problem, you're not satisfied.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) No one can say you've been building castles in the air at this time; indeed, your dreams enjoy a strong and stable foundation in reality.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can expect to have more excitement than you had planned on, but you may not be able to prepare yourself for it in any special way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are likely to find yourself indebted to someone who has, in the past, developed a history of asking too much of you too often. Deal with it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's no substitute for timely action. You'll want to do the right thing at the right time — at every turn.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Now is not the time to lurk about in the background. Your role will bring you to the forefront, and demand that you dig deep for inspiration.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An early start is meant to give you an advantage, but unless you use the time as efficiently as possible, you may find yourself missing out.

5 Years Later, U.S. Is Safer

THE US IS MUCH SAFER now than we were on 9/11. We are taking the fight to the enemy instead of letting them attack us here at home, and there have been no serious terror attacks on U.S. soil since then. Osama bin Laden and friends are in hiding, no longer protected by friendly governments. The majority of the al-Qaeda leadership have been killed or captured. Most importantly, 50 million people have been freed from tyranny and can now choose their own destinies, and choose peace.

Correction:

Thursday's Weekend Pass mistakenly said this Saturday's Oktoberfest is free. It is $82. Also, "A Life of Errors" is at the Curator's Office and not the Hirshhorn. And an article erroneously stated there was a tennis-star secret agent in "Mission: Impossible." The character was on "I Spy."

■ As a child star, Tina Majorino lived the life aquatic in "Waterworld" and played daughter to Meg Ryan ("When a Man Loves a Woman") and Ray Liotta ("Corrina, Corrina"). In the past few years, the 21-year-old actress has won grown-up fans as geek-chic heroines in "Napoleon Dynamite" and "Veronica Mars." Season three of the latter starts Oct. 3 on the new CW network. She dishes on "VM" and her Cali-girl life.

'VERONICA MARS' STAR, TECH ENTHUSIAST

A murderous boyfriend, friends in peril, high school graduation. Your "Veronica Mars" character, Mac, faced some big issues last season. What can we expect in season three?
Mac had a hard time. You'll see transitions in the character, down to her appearance. She's gotten more demure, and she's not as out there as she was.

No more neon streaks in her hair?
She doesn't want that kind of attention. But there's still an edge to her. I get to wear costumes that are feminine, yet a little punk and rockabilly. She loves skulls!

How do you dress off the set?
My style is so different from Mac's. I'm a jeans and Chuck Taylors girl. I don't wear crazy colors in my hair, though I did when I was younger.

In "Napoleon Dynamite," you sport a sideways ponytail. Are they back?
I've seen so many girls do them, but they glam it up. Anything new like that, I'm all for.

And in that movie, you were also big on crafts. Do you make anything yourself?
I sound like a total grandma, but I do a lot of needlepoint. I like that you can really see the progress as you do it. I also paint a lot, and take photographs.

What do you wear when you hit the red carpet?
Whenever I do it, I want to feel feminine and pretty. Lots of my characters have a kind of awkwardness to them — Mac has never worn a dress! — so I try to step out of that and wear something womanly.

Any fave designers for dressing up?
Marc Jacobs shoes are fantastic.

Mac loves her computers and gadgets. Are you also a techie?
Yes, very much so. That was a big turn-on about the role. I'm in love with computers, and I've got, like, five different Macs at home.

Where do you keep all those computers?
I just bought a house, and it's my first time living on my own. It's been fun for me to decorate it. I've done it very New York loft-y.

> "I'm in love with computers. I've got, like, five different Macs at home."

What have you done to your pad?
I have all different-colored walls — mint green in the living room, teal and white in the office, brown and gray in the bedroom.

Any other ways you've decorated?
I also have photos all over the place of me as a kid and of my best girlfriends. I got into photography because it's about capturing moments. It's much like the job I do — film is forever.

I hear you surf. Any chance you'll hit the waves with the surfer dudes on "Veronica"?
Probably not — it wouldn't be congruent with my character. But I love surfing. It's great to be outside and play. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

2 Carbon Copy

ONE OF OUR FAVE footwear dens just stepped into a new 'hood. Kevin Powers, the well-shod mastermind behind U Street's Carbon, just opened a second branch of his unisex shoe shop in Woodley Park (2643 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-232-6645). Skinny shelves lit from below shift color as often as the hip stock does—think Mark Nason Lounge's lace-ups ($169) for him, Velvet Messiah's rocker-cool belts ($155) for anyone and Blay's sexy boots for her.

PAINT YOURSELF PRETTY with the new Perfect Touch from Yves Saint Laurent ($50, exclusively at Saks Fifth Avenue and saks.com). Use the brush/YSL's radiant foundation hybrid by dabbing a little product on your hand, then stroking it onto your face. The brush application leads to a lighter, more even look than sponges, and the bottle bounced around our purse for a month without leaking.

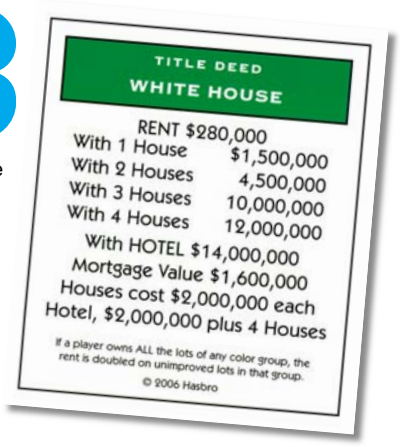

4 Fashion Fusion

HAND-PAINTED SILK halters, jewel-tone wrap jackets and sexy pants made in Vietnam and designed by Virginia's Brigitte Le star in an eve of fashion and sake-sippin' Sept. 21, 6-9 p.m., at downtown Asian atelier Dragonfly Design and Decor (1457 Church St. NW; 202-265-3359). Funky, femme styles seem ripe for pairing with jeans or a black T-shirt. "The tops look good with leggings," said Le. "It's the mix that's in today."

3 Hot Listing Downtown!

IF DEMOCRATS WANT to take back the White House, they can just try to snag it in the new "Here & Now" edition of Monopoly ($30), which ditches Atlantic City for national real estate. The house at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. is a bargain at $3.2 million (only Fenway Park and Times Square are more pricey). And liberals will be happy to cruise around the board with one of the new tokens: a Prius.

1 For Frill Seekers

GIRLY, BAROQUE-meets-Bauhaus style invades millions of U.S. mailboxes this week as the Brocade Home catalog debuts (brocadehome.com). "It's about integrating clean lines with glamour," said creator Lisa Versacio. Velvets, curlicues and crystals shine on furnishings like a carved headboard ($600-$800), bordello-ish chandeliers and brocade tuffets. Marie Antoinette and those "Sex and the City" gals would both be impressed.

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOEBLOGGER

My high school-aged daughter asked me to ask you for shoes to go with skirts. She wears a back brace and wants low heels, sure footing and a little bit of style. —ANDREW

■ Manolo says, ah, how the Manolo remembers his own traumatic few days in the high school, where the Manolo first discovered that not everyone on the football team appreciated the super fantastic shoes, shoes that the Manolo himself had constructed out of the old book bag he would not carry and the gym clothes he would not wear. Children can be so cruel, and the gym lockers they are dark on the inside. Still, such petty buffeting did not break the spirit of the Manolo, for he had learned that being super fantastic is as much the burden as the pleasure, and indeed the jealousy of the un-super fantastic swirled around the Manolo like the tails of the Edwardian frock coat he frequently wore to his algebra class. Although, as the hulking Eduardo "El Bruto" Sanchez taught the Manolo in the schoolyard after class, sometimes it is better to wear the clothing that is appropriate to the time and place. Here are the pair of the hip and sporty suede Mary Janes from the Lacoste ($144, zappos.com) that would be most appropriate for the high school girl who stands out but wishes to fit in.

THIS SILK DIANE VON FURSTENBERG wrap dress combines Sally Bowles-style with modern panache — and it's a ringer for Sanderson's sketch. ($295, Saks Fifth Avenue Chevy Chase; 301-657-9000)

"THERE'S A SENSE OF HEIGHTENED REALITY" inside the Kit Kat Club, said Sanderson. Similar to Sally's club wear, above, this crinkled taffeta coat by Simon Change will add theater-worthy drama to your closet. ($525, Pink November, 1529 Wisconsin Ave. NW; 202-333-1121)

Risqué Business

"What do you do if you have no money, but have to create fab-ulous clothes?" That was the impetus behind Austin Sanderson's designs for "Cabaret," the Kander and Ebb musical about chorines and Nazis (Arena Stage through Oct. 29). Despite tight 1930s budgets, Sally Bowles and the other denizens of the Kit Kat Club had enviable Weimar wardrobes. And with a bias-cut dress, an asymmetrical hemline or two, and "lots of great underwear," your life can be a cabaret, too. KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

THIGH-HEIGHT IS THE RIGHT HEIGHT for edgy, corset-style lace-up stockings. A word of caution: These time-consumers aren't what you want to reach for when you're in a hurry. ($29, Frederick's of Hollywood)

"STAGE COLORS are punchier, sharper, bigger" said Sanderson. But bright hues can add pizazz to almost any outfit. Kenneth Cole's Boxed In shoe combines a 1930s shape with a sexy heel and fiery red. ($285, kennethcole.com)

THE POSSESSION: BIRD-INSPIRED SHOES
THE OWNER: ANNE ELLEGOOD, ASSOCIATE CURATOR, HIRSHHORN MUSEUM AND SCULPTURE GARDEN

A Feather Fan

You won't find Anne Ellegood's favorite shoes — or anything remotely like them — at DSW. The Wedgewood-blue suede stilettos, decked out in feathers and opalescent leather, were created by renowned sculptor Rachel Feinstein and designer Edmundo Castillo and would make any shoe-lover's heart pound. She scored them for a few hundred bucks at a 2002 fundraiser for the Museum of Contemporary Art in New York.

> "I bought them thinking I would wear them on special occasions."

"I bought them thinking I would wear them on special occasions," Ellegood said, but "it never seems like exactly the appropriate time." (Plus, the heels are a daunting 4 inches.) But the real reason is that she doesn't want to damage the delicate avian beauties. "I feel like they're kind of an artwork," she explained. They're inspiring, too: Ellegood has since realized she's drawn to art featuring our feathered friends, such as the giant Jim Lambie sculpture, painted black with fluorescent drips, that graces the Hirshhorn lobby. MICHELLE REPISO/EXPRESS

A LEG UP: We dressed up black Victoria's Secret Active Wear leggings ($25) with this little black-and-white polka-dot number ($285) and black peep-toe platforms from Betsey Johnson ($154, see betseyjohnson.com for stores).

Glamour Gams

The legging is back, and this time it's cuter

Those who can remember leggings packed them away 15 years ago with their Jane Fonda workout tapes and Rubik's Cubes. And those who don't aren't nearly as horrified by their comeback.

There's no denying that leggings have returned with a vengeance. But the second-skin aerobic pants are now a stylish and sophisticated fashion essential — though there's still much room for abuse. While typically done in stretch-cotton with an elastic waistband, contemporary versions come in an array of fabrics and styles.

Locally, U Street-area boutique Lettie Gooch (1911 9th St. NW; 202-332-4242) has seen sales of lace leggings soar, while at L.A.-based American Apparel, the garment has shot from the company's 45th best-selling item to its sixth. For fall, the company debuted versions in acrylic cable-knit and disco-goddess lamé (see americanapparel.net for local stores or to buy online). The Gap and J.Crew have further democratized the look.

Kim Woods, buyer and sales associate at Georgetown shoe boutique Sassanova (1641 Wisconsin Ave. NW; 202-471-4400), said D.C. gals have embraced Spanx — body-slimming footless tights usually worn under clothing — as leggings. The store is selling out, box after box.

"In Europe, girls started wearing leggings again few years ago and then they were popular in New York," said Woods. "We do what everyone else does — D.C. just gets it a little later."

Leggings, in part, owe their wide appeal to changes in the fashion industry itself. For the past several years, the dominant silhouette of women's clothes has been fitted above and wider below — tight tees and flared trousers, for example. This season, it's all about voluminous tops over skinny, fitted bottoms.

But you don't have to be a size 2 20-something to pull off leggings. "In New York, I saw women in their 50s wearing them," said Donielle Wheeler, sales associate at Lettie Gooch. "Any woman of any age or size can wear leggings. It's just how you wear them."

> "In New York, I saw women in their 50s wearing leggings."

So to avoid looking like you just stepped out of a '80s music video, keep these guidelines in mind:

DO Stick to Solids
To achieve a sleek, classy look, or to slim a fuller figure, wear solid-colored leggings in a dusky hue. "Black and dark green are best," said Gloria Acheson, a personal shopper at the Tysons Galleria Macy's. If your style is funky (or you're still in high school), visit Urban Outfitters for crazy colors and wild prints, then pair them with Converse low-tops.

DO Cover Your Behind
Unless you want all of M Street starring at your derrière, pair leggings with oversized shirts, tunics and dresses. Long tops can also help elongate full-figured women, and are a must for the bottom-heavy. Remember: Leggings are accessories, not pants, and should always be worn under something else.

DON'T Dress Too Young
Women in their 30s and 40s shouldn't try to be Lindsay Lohan. "I would never wear leggings with a short denim skirt," said Woods. "It's trying too hard. It's just too Madonna for me." Keep it polished with knee-length skirts and flats.

DON'T Toss Summer Garb
Stretch warm-weather gear with leggings under shorts or a prairie skirt; top off the look with a woolly sweater or knit cardigan. When it gets chilly, trade in the platform sandals for knee-high boots.

DON'T Wear Stirrups
Unless they're tucked into tall boots, stirrups (leggings with elastic straps under the foot) never look stylish or modern. You'll look like a horse jockey, and the only attention you'll attract will be pitying stares. Stick to calf or ankle lengths.

DO Dress Them Up
For a nice dinner or party, don your shin sheaths under a jersey-knit dress with high stilettos or ankle boots. What about the workplace? "Absolutely," said Acheson. Leggings can definitely fly in some office settings; Woods suggests flats and a long sweater dress for a professional setting.

Above all, keep an open mind, even if it's your second time around. "Just try them," said Acheson. "You'll be surprised." ASHLEY PARKER

Hats Off to Food!

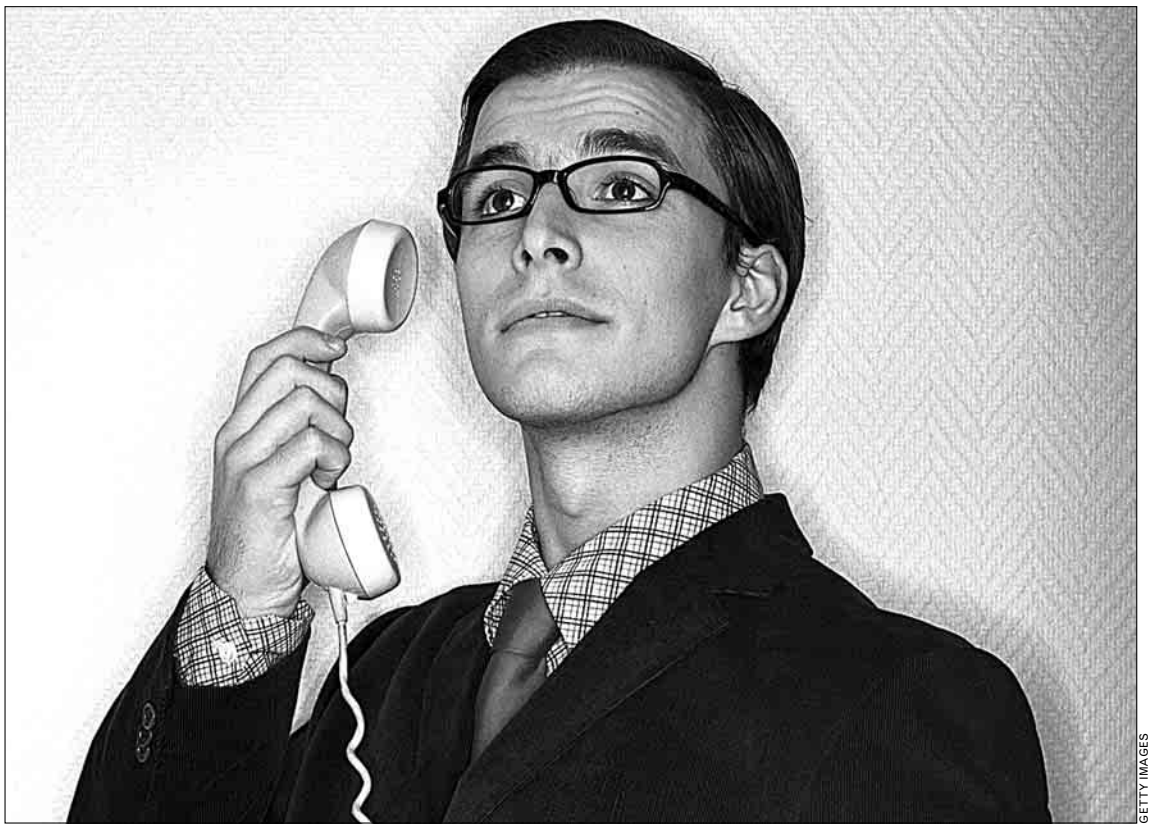

■ Any cookbook that has "cake" as its first chapter is immediately determined to be awesome. THE RED HAT SOCIETY COOKBOOK ($25, Rutledge Hill Press), from the organization made up of Women of a Certain Age, is all about celebrating food and friends, which means none of the recipes is terribly difficult. Each was submitted by a Red Hat Lady somewhere in the world. But we suggest hitting the recipes from Southerners first, as they're more likely to contain either bacon, cake mix or both. You cannot deny that Oh-So-Easy Sweet Kielbasa, which involves four pounds of sausage and two pounds of brown sugar, sounds pretty tempting. And Doughnut Bread Pudding with Butter Rum Sauce has BOTH Krispy Kremes and rum! KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

Eat There in Spirit

■ Chowing your way through BIBA'S ITALY: FAVORITE RECIPES FROM THE SPLENDID CITIES ($30, Artisan) might not substitute for a trip to the boot-shaped nation, but your belly won't notice the difference. Biba Caggiano gives readers a backstory on each dish, along with reminiscences of yummy morsels she's enjoyed, like the divine baked scamorza (that's cheese) and pear skewers served in Florence and a Milanese risotto with chanterelles, Fontina and sparkling wine. And if you do manage to heft your tummy overseas, she tells you where to gab over coffee, order the wild boar and indulge in gelato. V.H.

BAD CONNECTION: When friends don't respond to invitations, a good host is forced to call and teach them better manners.

Reply or Else I'll ...

When even an engraved invite doesn't cut it

R.S.V.P. They're just four letters, and yet, they are apparently tremendously difficult to comprehend. When 26-year-old Erin Brunner sent out invitations to her August wedding at the Newton White Mansion in Mitchellville, Md., just 70 percent of her guests dropped the response cards back in the mail. "As a bride, it's very frustrating. You spend money on those stamps and it goes to waste," she said. More annoying was that, even after she got on the phone to squeeze out definitive answers, she had to make repeat calls. One buddy from high school finally said she'd come if her new boyfriend could tag along. "Halfway through the reception, I realized she wasn't there," Brunner recalled. "And she hasn't contacted me since."

"It's an epidemic," explained Nancy Mitchell, who teaches manners to wayward Washingtonians as "The Etiquette Advocate." Once upon a time, everyone knew that when someone extends to you an invitation, you respond. But these days, even generally well-behaved folks often refrain from letting their plans be known. "People think, 'Well, I'm not coming, so I don't have to respond,' or 'We'll see how it goes that day.' We're a spontaneous, last-minute society now, so people are putting invitations aside to see if they get a better offer,'" Mitchell lamented. "But they should know this is a tremendous blunder, and it reflects badly on them."

As the model host, your job then becomes to educate these ignoramuses. Start by always giving them a date by which they must respond. It's always been common practice to do this on formal invitations, but it can't hurt to do it for your housewarming party either. "You don't just want to know who's coming. You need the numbers to plan ahead," advised Jessica Landy, senior product developer at Evite. "I usually say I need to know by then so I can figure out how much food to buy, and people understand."

Landy recommends personalizing invitations as much as possible; Evite sees a bump in the average response rate (Only 60 percent usually reply!) when subject lines are more creative and the text "sets the stage" for the event, she said. There are also some changes coming to the site that she thinks will give guests a jolt, including ways for invitees to request songs and arrange car pools.

All of these technological bells and whistles are possible when you choose the electronic route to get to your guests. But a multipronged approach may yield more results, especially if you're dealing with a mixed-age crowd that may respond differently to letters and e-mails. Blanket everyone with both kinds of invites, and there's no way they can claim they never heard about this mysterious soiree of yours. And if you let them respond by snail mail, e-mail or phone, you're likely to catch a bigger haul, Mitchell said.

If your lovingly crafted invitations still don't get a reply, a host then does what Brunner had to do this summer: Get on the horn. Kathleen Murray of TheKnot.com, which has found that 79 percent of couples need to follow up with guests, said a direct phone call or e-mail is the push many people need. "You might send out a mass e-mail with everyone blind cc'ed asking for an immediate response," she recommended. And if you still don't hear back? "I would follow that up with a phone call and say, 'Unless you get back to me by 5 p.m. today, we can't include you in the wedding.'"

They need to learn sometime. VICKY HALLETT (EXPRESS)

INTERNATIONAL TALK LIKE A PIRATE DAY

■ The arrrrs, they will be rolling this coming Tuesday. Tracy Morgado, co-owner of Piratz Tavern (8402 Georgia Ave.; 301-588-9001), a yet-to-open restaurant and bar in Silver Spring, recommends starting your pirate-parlance party planning at deadmentellnotales.com, which offers essential goods such as Jolly Roger toilet paper. Grog, a dark rum and water drink, is a must; Morgado adds fresh fruit to hers. Real pirate food (hardtack, mystery-meat stew) is not for all tastes, so try the Tavern's strategy: It'll serve foods from the home regions of plunderers and plunderees — Jamaican jerk, Indian curries, seafood. Then, brush up on buccaneer-speak at talklikeapirate.com. If you don't have your costume yet, Morgado suggests the Maryland Renaissance Festival (rennfest.com). And as might be expected, eye patches are a must; ours are from 826valencia.org/store. JULIA BEIZER

Feed a fleet of vegetarians with crunchy fruits and veggies and a nice, warm dip.

Yay for B-Day Boys!

My son's first birthday is coming up and I saw a really cute idea in a magazine. It layers two sheet cakes and cuts them into cubes to be iced as baby blocks. Problem is, while I'm a great cook, I'm a terrible baker. Do you know if I could buy plain sheet cakes at cake stores?
The bakery departments in Harris Teeter stores and some Giant Food stores will sell you unfrosted sheet cakes. You'll need to call ahead and deal with bakery managers there.

I'm also planning my son's first birthday party. We are having a total of 75 people! I don't have the time to do all that cooking, so I thought I'd buy pizza and make a couple of sides. I haven't a clue what to make. It has to be vegetarian, but nothing with seafood.
Sounds like your own version of a salad bar would be the way to go here. Big bowls of different greens, cut-up colorful raw vegetables and a range of dressings. Go for a nice display.

The following make-ahead recipe for a warm barbecue-like appetizer dip works with vegetables and crispy things, too. And it'll make enough to serve your crowd:

MANCHURIAN DIP
Adapted from "Wife of the Chef: The True Story of a Restaurant and Romance" by Courtney Febbroriello (Clarkson Potter):

1 LARGE carrot, peeled and coarsely chopped; 1 SMALL green chili pepper, seeded and coarsely chopped; 1 MEDIUM red onion, roughly chopped; 2 LARGE celery stalks, roughly chopped; 1 LARGE bunch cilantro, including stems; 10 MEDIUM cloves garlic, peeled; 1 TABLESPOON vegetable oil; 2 CUPS ketchup; 1/4 CUP soy sauce; 1 TABLESPOON sugar; 1 TEASPOON chili powder; SALT; FRESHLY GROUND black pepper.

In a food processor, combine the carrot, chili pepper, onion, celery and cilantro. Add the garlic and pulse until blended.

Heat the oil in a medium saucepan on medium-high. Put the pureed vegetables in the pan and heat through, three to four minutes. Add the ketchup and soy sauce and cook for another 10 minutes. Reduce heat to medium-low. When sauce starts to thicken, add the sugar, chili powder, salt and pepper to taste. May cover and refrigerate for up to one week.

Hark! The Maryland Renaissance Festival recalls the age of powerful buttresses and power-mad Tudors until Oct. 22 near Annapolis. Its 16th-century shops and King Henry VIII are fake, but you can live like a real royal with heraldry and Gothic goods in your fortress. "People want to be Mel Gibson in 'Braveheart,'" said Design Toscano's Steve Pseno. After all, a man's home is his you-know-what. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

Bring the Paints

decor Diva

Q I redid my bedroom with sheer, soft gold-and-cream curtains on a gilded rod, cherry furniture and antique gold accessories. It looks good, except the walls, which are ghostly white. I'm terrified of putting up some paint and hating it! Help!

Paint is the quickest, most economical way to give a room a speedy makeover. But it sounds like you might have coloritis: The fear that you'll be unmade by putting up the wrong shade. And you shouldn't be afraid. Even if you slapped on a few coats of the world's ugliest eggplant purple, tomorrow is a another day and another chance to do your walls a different color. It's a paint roller, not a chisel!

To choose hues, think of paint-color strips or decks as boxes of crayons. The brightest color should probably be avoided — it'll look loud on a big wall. Instead, seek shades that are "grayed out," aka slightly diluted. These tones tend to work better with furniture and fabrics and be much more soothing. Most of Benjamin Moore's Historical Colors produce subtle results.

In your creamy dream space, try a gray-blue like Benjamin Moore's Yukon Sky or a sage like Vale Mist, which would be restful and contrast with the cherry. If you want to echo the gold, go for BM's Fennel Seed.

Q We have a patio in front of our house, but it is mostly concrete. I'd like to create a nice hang-out area so I can have friends over. Right now it looks like a cell block with sad patio furniture. How can I save it?

To hide an ugly view or icky concrete walls, construct a lattice wall or install a trellis like those at hpotter.com. Then train vines onto it — grapes would create a Napa vibe. You might also put in ground-level planters (simplyplanters.com) along the patio perimeter. Fill them with bamboo or grasses, and, viola, green privacy screen.

HUES FOR WHERE YOU SNOOZE: Colors might include soothing sagey greens like Benjamin Moore's Pale Sea Mist, shown, subtle gray-blues and golden yellows.

Furniture and flowers turn a dreary patio into an outdoor party zone.

To upgrade plain concrete, stain it to mimic granite or slate (kemiko.com) or apply tile over it.

Chairs and a table or two will also help turn your prison yard into a fab entertaining spot. The outdoor furniture market has exploded in recent years, and you can choose pieces from mod to trad in materials from teak to iron. Also nice: indoor-outdoor wicker, fade-resistant cushions.

To buy outdoor furniture, check out smithandhawken.com and charlestongardens.com. Local shops include Offenbacher's (multiple locations; offenbachers.com) and Spring Valley Patio (49th St. and Massachusetts Ave. NW; 202-966-9088; springvalleypatio.com). Ikea, West Elm and World Market make hip, inexpensive patio pieces.

Keep in mind the spot's exposure to the elements. If it's sun-drenched, get a big market umbrella. If it's windy, buy heavy furniture — wrought iron, teak. Then chill the wine, put out a few pots of flowers, and get the party started.

B.I.O.

BY INVITATION ONLY: UPCOMING WEDDINGS & UNIONS

Lester Brotherton, Gina Nims

Les, 45, is an exhibitor services executive for the Freeman Company. Gina, 31, is a program analyst for Science Applications International. They live in Alexandria.

■ The Main Event: An intimate-but-casual ceremony for 50 guests in Myrtle Beach, S.C., on Sept. 23. Gina will walk across the sand, barefoot, to Stevie Wonder's "Ribbon in the Sky."

■ How They Met: Online and long-distance — Les was working in Las Vegas, though he often traveled to D.C.

■ First Impressions: That she was "a feisty, no B.S.-type woman," said Les.

■ First Date: Johnny Rockets at Arundel Mills. As they walked around afterwards, one of the mall vendors asked how long they'd been a couple, because they looked so comfortable together.

■ Their Song: "You," by Raheem DeVaughn.

■ Stupidest Fight: Gina "totally lost it" when Les didn't greet her dog, Diva, with baby talk and a belly rub.

■ Pet Names: Gina calls Les "Retsel" — his name spelled backward.

■ When He Knew: "Spending that time with her" — the three weeks they hung out after their first date — "made my entire world feel at peace, like being in a soundproof booth," said Les.

■ Making It Unique: There will be a "processional dancer" in lieu of a flower girl; she'll perform a ribbon dance to welcome Gina down the aisle.

"When I laid eyes on him, his spirit totally overwhelmed me."

Love Gets Serious

When JEFFREY TARRANT and CHARMAINE BELL met in Virginia Beach, they had very distinct first impressions of each other. "We both had a lot in common — our politics are the same, we both love to travel, love good food, all that stuff," she said. "She was hot," he said. "And a great kisser."

Jeff knew he wanted to marry Charmaine when "I realized my auto insurance premiums would decrease!" But seriously: "I gradually came to the conclusion that I could not imagine a future without her." So when they were in Paris on vacation, in front of the Louvre, Jeff pulled out a ring box and asked, "Do you want to grow old with me?" "I was so surprised that I paused," said Charmaine. "Then he said, 'Or should I say, older?' I thought that was funny and so like Jeff ... I said yes immediately."

Jeff, 39, is a lieutenant commander in the U.S. Public Health Service. Charmaine, 41, manages a branch of an IT staffing firm. They live in Springfield and will marry Oct. 7 in Washington, D.C., at the Hotel Monaco.

Ayonna Brown, Brent Harley

Ayonna, 31, is a travel coordinator at the Department of Homeland Security's Domestic Nuclear Detection Office. Brent, 29, is a financial analyst. They live in Upper Marlboro.

■ The Main Event: A small, semi-formal ceremony on Oct. 14 at a local wedding chapel.

■ Honeymoon: Cancun.

■ How They Met: At the nightclub Dream.

■ First Impressions: Brent thought Ayonna was "cute, like a sexy schoolteacher — after hours."

■ First Date: Dinner and drinks at the Tequila Grill.

■ How He Proposed: On Ayonna's daughter's first day of kindergarten. They rushed downstairs to eat breakfast only to see Brent standing at the foot of the staircase with one ring for Ayonna and one for her daughter.

"I couldn't picture my life without her or our daughter in it."

■ Stupidest Fight: "Over this towel I use to clean my hands after/during cooking," said Brent. "She wants to use it to wipe off dishes."

■ Most Hated Clothing Item: "Those ugly, faded-out, blue-gray slacks that he calls 'comfortable,'" said Ayonna.

■ Pet Names: Brent calls Ayonna "Boo-Boo." She calls him "Lightbulb."

■ When She Knew: "When I realized how much love he had for my daughter, as well as for me."

Nekeidra Mason, Richard Taylor

Nekeidra, 29, is a community relations and special events supervisor. Richard, 31, is a financial analyst. They live in Mitchellville.

■ The Main Event: The Methodist ceremony will take place on the evening of Sept. 23, with about 200 guests invited. Their reception will be held at the University of Maryland University College.

■ How They Met: At a Memorial Day cookout.

■ First Impressions: "He seemed really nice and was a gentleman," said Nekeidra.

■ First Date: Dinner in Mt. Pleasant, followed by dancing in Adams Morgan.

■ How He Proposed: At a dinner party at their house, with all their friends in attendance. "It was really special," said Nekeidra.

■ Stupidest Fight: Over a T-shirt.

■ Most Hated Clothing Item: "This brown and white shirt," said Nekeidra. "I can't get into the material." "Her velvet jacket," said Richard.

■ When She Knew: On Valentine's Day, 2004. "We'd been dating for about nine months, but I never said anything to him. I just knew because he truly was dedicated to what we could become."

■ Wedding Traditions: The couple will jump the broom.

■ The Dress: "Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue! It's a secret."

■ Wedding Jitters: Richard's afraid no one will show up; Nekeidra worries that she'll trip over her dress.

■ With an Infinite Budget ... They'd fly in their out-of-town guests and pay for the bridesmaid dresses.

How to Play

The rules of Samurai Sudoku are the same as in the popular Sudoku puzzles that appear in Express and The Washington Post.

As with standard Sudoku, the Samurai version requires no math, just logic, reasoning ... and an iron will. The goal is to fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles.

A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another. As always, there's only one solution, which will appear in next week's edition of Weekend Styles.

Can't get enough Sudoku? Find a standard Sudoku puzzle in the Comics section of the Post every Sunday and in the Style section every Monday through Saturday.

Think you've got what it takes to grace the cover of Weekend Styles? Send your name and a recent picture to photo@readexpress.com. You don't have to look like the typical model. Beauty of every kind and both genders is welcome. But if you have a modeling agent, you can't play. And you have to be over 18.
